VANCOUVER (CP)—RCMP and city police drug squads today arrested 22 persons and held warrants for 22 more on charges of trafficking in narcotics and goofballs.

The arrests resulted from several months of undercover work by RCMP Const. G. C. Hunt, police said.

Most of the suspects were arrested in the city's east end in a co-ordinated series of raids.

Staff Sgt. J. H. Nelson, chief of the RCMP drug squad in Vancouver, said 25 persons were charged with trafficking in narcotics and 17 others with trafficking in goofballs, a slang term used to describe sedatives or stimulants taken as a substitute for narcotics.

Police said the roundup marks the first major crackdown on goofball trafficking in Canada. Sale of goofballs was recently brought under control of the federal Food and Drug Act.

Vancouver coroner Glen McDonald said last week 18 deaths have been attributed to the use of goofballs in the first half of 1962.

SECOND ROUNDUP

It was the second large scale roundup connected with the illicit narcotics trade in Vancouver this year.

Most of 31 men and women arrested last January have since been sent to prison. Police said the arrests broke up the biggest drug syndicate ever to operate in Western Canada.

The crackdown resulted in a shortage of narcotics for the estimated 2,000 addicts in Vancouver, about half the estimated number of addicts in Canada.

Police said the shortage forced the price of heroin, normally $5 a capsule in the underworld, to as high as $22. It also stepped up the use of goofballs.

Coroner McDonald said nine of the deaths blamed on goofballs resulted from straight overdoses, eight were overdoses of barbiturates and alcohol and one from a mixture of barbiturates and morphine.

Last week, two Vancouver Sun reporters wrote that they could purchase goofballs as easily as a bag of candy during the two days they spent mixing with drug addicts in the city's east end.

They said they made a dozen separate purchases for a total of 60 goofballs at prices ranging from 35 cents for one capsule to $5 for a dozen.

Oak Bay Buys B.C. Bonds

Oak Bay has followed Victoria in plans to buy a quarter-million dollars' worth of B.C. parity bonds.

Victoria council has authorized $300,000 worth of bonds to be purchased out of tax receipts.

Oak Bay's $250,000 would be bought the same way, on a short-term basis, the bonds to be converted later in the year as the need for funds arise.

Oak Bay is buying B.C. Toll Bridges and Highway Authority bonds, yielding 5½ per cent.

Propane Blast Threat Renewed

MAPLE, Ont. (CP)—Engineers were risking their lives today attempting to prevent a new blast at an explosion-wrecked $200,000 propane gas plant.

They were spraying water on a burning truck—an experiment to see whether a similar technique can be used on a 30,000-gallon tank which is still blazing and threatening the neighborhood with another explosion.

The dangerous experiment is being carried on in the shadow of the huge tank at the Superior Propane Company, more than 48 hours after a series of blasts occurred.

One man was killed when the storage tanks went up. Three other men were injured. It was feared that unless escaping gas can be controlled, the 30,000-gallon tank will explode with the most severe blast so far.

The engineers are exploring the theory that water will cool the tank and speed the rate at which the gas escapes.

Risk of a new explosion arose early today when two of four geysers of flame on the huge tank went out—extinguished by heavy rain. Police said that if all four flames went out before sufficient gas was burned up a new blast would be almost inevitable.

By dawn today a total of 26 families had been evacuated. Some were given shelter in private homes in this village of 1,100 just north of Toronto.

WRONG WAY SELF-SERVE BRINGS JAIL

WARSAW (Reuters)—Twenty-five persons were sentenced today by the High Court to prison terms ranging from 10 months to six years for cheating customers in the city's biggest self-serve restaurant.

The accused, including the entire staff of the restaurant from the general manager down to women dishwashers, were said to have diluted sauces, reduced the size of dishes, served underweight steaks and in one year to have cheated customers of about 1,000,000 zlotys (about $41,000) worth of food.

COLWOOD

Aged Man Loses Life In Fire

By LES MILLIN

An elderly man died early today in a fire that gutted his cabin at a Colwood motel.

Dead is John Mathews, 80.

Twenty firemen of the Colwood volunteer department, called at 4 a.m., fought the blaze for an hour.

Before they could subdue it, heat had charred the interior of the cabin, blown the glass out of the windows and demolished the furniture in the small room.

Paint on the outside walls was blistered off, and only the shell of the building still stands.

NO EXPLANATION

No official explanation of the fire was available, but firemen said the cabin's stove was turned off and could not have started the blaze.

Mr. Mathews was known to smoke a pipe.

A neighbor in an adjoining cabin gave the alarm.

His body was found on the floor by firemen who broke the door down to release smoke after intense heat inside the frame building blew glass from the windows.

SON ABSENT

A son, Charles, lived with Mr. Mathews but was away from the cabin Monday night, staying with a sister who lives in a trailer park nearby.

Although crippled—the victim was wounded in the First World War—he was able to get about quite well, relatives said.

Mr. Mathews had taken off the brace he usually wore on his left leg, and was evidently sitting in an easy chair near the stove when the fire began.

Physically slight, Mr. Mathews was a veteran of both the Boer War and the First World War.

He had been a widower for 16 years.

WAS DECORATOR

An interior decorator in Kamloops before moving to Victoria, he had been here for three years, most of them living in his cabin at the auto court.

Mr. Mathews had another daughter here, Mrs. D. B. Ferguson, 413 Forward Drive.

Deputy coroner Edmond Jorje de St. Jorje said a coroner's inquiry will be held into the death.

Premiers Talk Finance Issues

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Canadian premiers Monday debated the whole field of provincial bond issues and came up with some ground rules for better financing.

One new move will be a secret pipeline to tip each other off on upcoming borrowing plans.

Aim would be to avoid clashes in timing, so that each province could obtain the best available market for securities.

"It would be done through the syndicates which usually market the bonds," said Quebec Premier Jean Lesage, chairman of the conference of premiers which today started its second series of sessions at the Legislative Buildings here.

Mr. Lesage said provincial borrowing occupied an hour of Monday's one and one-half hour meeting, and went far beyond agenda plans.

The premiers thrashed out various ways of raising money and ended with some ideas on the pitfalls and precautions experienced by B.C., Manitoba and Saskatchewan in parity bond and savings certificate plans.

CONCLUSIONS

The conclusions, according to Mr. Lesage were:

1. Wide distribution of such securities is necessary to avoid a sudden rush to cash them in if interest rates go up;
 2. Limits on the amount held by individuals and corporations are a good idea, also to avoid heavy cashing in;
 3. An exchange of information on upcoming issues would help all provinces planning and marketing issues.
- "I believe all of us came out of the discussion with a better knowledge of what can be done and how to improve existing systems," said Mr. Lesage.

He said B.C. delegates Premier Bennett and Attorney-General Bennett.

'No Evidence Of Conspiracy'

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—A magistrate today refused to commit 70 elders of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect on conspiracy charges.

Magistrate William Evans said there was not enough evidence for him to order higher court trial on the charges of conspiring to intimidate the governments of Canada and British Columbia with acts of violence.

His ruling ended a 38-day preliminary hearing into the charges which came after RCMP officers arrested the members of the Freedomite's fraternal council in a series of surprise raids at several shacks in the B.C. Kootenays.

Magistrate Evans said in his judgment witnesses and scores of documents produced by the Crown contained little to indicate that the accused had formed a conspiracy.

All but six of the men charged were to be set free later today. The six are in custody on other charges.

LEADERS CHARGED

Stefan Sorokin, spiritual leader of the Freedomites, and other sect leaders, both in Uruguay, were also charged with the conspiracy when the 70 were rounded up March 25.

Police said at the time Stefan and his aide would be arrested on the charges if they returned to Canada.

During the preliminary hearing Freedomite women in the Kootenays burned more than 200 of their homes and staged several nude demonstrations in protest against arrest of the leaders.

Police believed most of the incidents were in protest against the hearing.

At the opening of the hearing Crown prosecutor T. G. Bowen-Colthurst said it was the first time in Canadian history that the charge of intimidating Parliament has been invoked.

The charge carries a maximum penalty of 14 years imprisonment.

HEARING COST $100,000

Court officials estimated the hearing cost $100,000.

The March 25 arrests were one of a series of RCMP widespread bombings and arson in southeastern B.C. in recent years.

Last spring, a 600-foot hydro transmission tower was toppled by a Freedomite bomb, throwing several hundred Kootenay miners and smelting workers out of work for several weeks while power facilities were restored.

In a lengthy series of Supreme Court trials at Nelson, B.C., earlier this year, 95 Freedomite terrorists received jail terms totalling 1,010 years.

Joe Podovinkoff, one of the 70 accused who acted as their spokesman and interpreter during the hearing, said Magistrate Evans' decision would encourage Freedomites to co-operate with authorities to stamp out terrorism.

What was apparently the last hope to save the life of Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan, sentenced to death for her part in the murder of her Canadian-born daughter-in-law, vanished today when U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Justice denied a stay of execution. Mrs. Duncan is scheduled to be executed in the gas chamber at San Quentin Wednesday. Her lawyer says he plans a further appeal tonight.

HUNTED BY YARD

U.K. Orders U.S. Nazi Deported

LONDON (Reuters)—The British government tonight issued an order for the deportation of American Nazi leader George Lincoln Rockwell who slipped into Britain last week.

The order was issued as Scotland Yard detectives fanned out in a search for the self-styled "Fuhrer" whose presence here has raised protests from parliamentary members and anti-Fascist groups.

Rockwell, 42, is believed to be staying with a neo-Nazi sympathizer somewhere in London.

During the weekend Rockwell visited a Fascist-style camp set up by the tiny British National Socialist Movement in rural Gloucestershire where he lectured on anti-Semitism and anti-Negro ideology and whipped up considerable enthusiasm among sympathetic Britons.

Sunday a hooded man dashed past reporters at the camp into a waiting car and it was thought he might be Rockwell. Jack-booted camp guards, armed with cudgels, refused to say who it was.

REASON FOR STAR'S DEATH STILL A MYSTERY

Marilyn's Last Phone Call Probed

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A mysterious phone call in the night shortly before Marilyn Monroe was found dead added still further conjecture today to the tragedy that befell the blonde movie queen.

There also remained the question of whether she died intentionally or accidentally.

"I don't remember what time the call came in," said the actress' housekeeper, Mrs. Eunice Murray Monday. "And I don't know who it was from."

"But knowing Marilyn as I do, I think that if this call woke her up, she might have taken some more sleeping pills."

Coroner Theodore J. Curphey said the death Saturday of the actress was caused by a massive overdose of barbiturates.

Mrs. Murray added that the unidentified call might account for the phone's being found clutched in the hand of the sometimes bright and gay, sometimes depressed star.

ARRANGE FUNERAL

Meanwhile, arrangements were being completed for quiet funeral services and burial Wednesday. Friends were hoping the simple rites would not attract throngs of the curious.

Details were not set, but a funeral home spokesman said only 15 persons were invited to the service for the 36-year-old Miss Monroe.

"There will be just persons close to Marilyn, no movie people," said a spokesman.

The actress will be placed in a mausoleum crypt near the grave of a woman believed to have befriended her early in life.

The headstone identifies Grace Goddard, who died in 1953 and whose burial arrangements were made by Marilyn herself.

The woman is believed to be the former Grace McKee, who took Marilyn in as a child when

MANY TRIES

NEW YORK (UPI)—Marilyn Monroe attempted suicide several times in her life, friends disclosed today.

Producer Ben Hecht said Marilyn told him in California in 1954 that she tried to take her life twice before she was 19. Other friends here said she had dangerous bouts with sleeping pills in more recent years.

"When she told me of the suicide attempts in 1954, she was leaving her unhappy early life behind."

"She had 10 wonderful years. Then Hollywood failed her."

(Times News Services)

DUTTON, Ont. — "Aye, 'tis fair drookit we'll all be today," said the kilned man as he stood beneath a tent surveying the heavy rains that washed down upon the annual highland games of the West Elgin Caledonian Society Monday.

And most of the McPhersons, MacDonalds, Campbells, McKays, McDougalls and other clansmen were fair drookit — soaked to the skin.

But the rains came, and the cabers sank lower into the soft ground and it became too damp for the 14 bands to perform.

As the Scotsmen and Scottish enthusiasts stood beneath dripping canopies looking at the empty field, a voice containing only a slight brogue remarked:

"Well, we got the gate receipts anyway."

MONTPELIER, Vt. — Vermont's department of agriculture has quietly deflated a myth which has persisted in Vermont for many years.

It just isn't true, the department reports, that Vermont has more cows than people.

A current department publication places the total of all livestock in the state at 383,313, according to census figures from town reporters.

Vermont population was just over 390,000 in the 1960 census.

LONDON — A Liverpool woman had a 108-seat BOAC Britannia all to herself Monday on a 3,500-mile flight from Montreal to Manchester.

Mrs. Margaret Nelson, 66, was returning from a two-month visit with her son in Winnipeg. She booked a seat on a flight started by the airline only a week ago.

"What a wonderful trip," she said. "Everybody made a great fuss of me. I was a real VIP."

A crew of 10, including five stewards and stewardesses, were at Mrs. Nelson's service during the seven-hour trip.

"I was a bit lonely at first. They offered me all sorts of marvelous food—smoked salmon and the rest—but I didn't fancy anything. So I made do with lots of cups of tea and coffee."

DUESSELDORF, Germany — Judging by attendance at the eighth "World Congress of Spinsters and Bachelors," ladies like to get together more than men. Or else there are a lot more spinsters than bachelors. Of about 1,000 persons at the meeting ending today, there were some 900 women and 100 men.

UNION, N.J. — David C. Austin, who worked 40 hours a week until he was 100 years old, died Sunday of complications resulting from a hip fracture.

Austine, a store clerk-cashier, attributed his longevity to moderate eating, staying away from strong drink, getting proper rest and most of all—work.

General Robert Bonner were "very helpful." So were Manitoba and Saskatchewan representatives.

B.C. has $212,000,000 worth of 5½ per cent parity demand bonds out at present; Manitoba and Saskatchewan have savings certificates payable on demand but non-negotiable.

Manitoba limits to $10,000 the value of certificates held by any individual or corporation—and only residents and resident companies may hold them. Saskatchewan has a limit of $25,000.

"These are precautions that would have to be taken—that I would take," said Mr. Lesage. He conceded B.C. hadn't.

He said that Quebec is cur-

Sales Tax Cheats No Problem Here

Premier Bennett said today B.C. has no serious problem with sales tax cheats.

He said there are no negotiations under way with other provinces at present to stamp out border-hopping tax cheats.

Alberta does not have a sales tax, so there is no problem there.

Mr. Bennett said B.C. sends inspectors to the prairie provinces to audit sales—and we get our money.

"The residents of B.C. pay their tax," he declared.

The provincial premiers conference spent some time Monday discussing the problem of people who buy goods in one province and have them shipped directly home—thus avoiding sales tax in either province.

'LAST CHANCE' MAGISTRATE TELLS ACCUSED

Robert Charles Jackson, no fixed address, was sentenced to one day in jail when he appeared in city police court today on a charge of possessing stolen goods.

He had pleaded guilty to the charge.

The accused told the court when he last appeared that a job offer had been made to him, and the case was adjourned until today so that the probation officer could investigate the offer.

Prosecutor Angus Smith told the court today that investigation indicated that the job offer was bona fide.

"Do you want to go straight, get a job, and make a decent citizen of yourself," the magistrate asked the accused.

"Yes, sir," Jackson replied.

"You have the opportunity now to break this chain of constant trips to prison."

"This is your last chance. I think it is worth taking."

rently, "considering" a parity bond issue.

He said the dealers handling provincial issues could keep in touch—"on a highly secret basis"—as is now done in Ontario and Quebec, on timing.

"We don't want clashes," he said.

BANK OF CANADA

"If necessary it could be done through the Bank of Canada as well."

The premiers also discussed Sunday work laws, reciprocal truck licensing and a possible agreement for helping each other fight forest fires.

"We don't make any decisions—each province makes its decision after these meetings," said Mr. Lesage.

But so far the conference had gone very well, he said.

"There is no disagreement."

PULP INDUSTRY

Discussion of Sunday work was confined to the pulp and paper industry, said Mr. Lesage.

He pointed out that these industries work Sundays in B.C., Ontario, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, but not in New Brunswick or Quebec.

"The question is to what extent this put New Brunswick and Quebec in an inferior bargaining position."

It also affects the location of new mills, he said.

Mr. Lesage said other labor issues were left for a future conference of labor ministers.

Mr. Lesage said he believed a cross-Canada agreement for truck licensing is possible.

AGREEMENTS

B.C. already has an agreement with most of the United States. Quebec and New Brunswick and Ontario and Quebec have agreements and one is coming between Ontario and Quebec.

Mr. Lesage said the best way is for provinces to negotiate first with their neighbors, then gradually spread the plan across the country.

It would be very difficult to get a national agreement for assistance on forest fires, but again, neighbors could make joint plans, as has been done already by Quebec and Ontario.

Mr. Lesage said the premiers have agreed not to "gang up" with demands on Ottawa, but to stick to inter-provincial matters.

Today's plans include a luncheon at HMCS Naden and a B.C. government dinner in the Empress Hotel. Conference sessions will wind up at 5 p.m. On Wednesday the premiers will go to Kelowna for a day at the annual regatta.

CLERGYMAN MAKES PLEA FOR MOTHER'S SLAYER

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—A clergyman said today he will try to stop the hanging of his mother's killer, 38-year-old Scottish immigrant Robert Tait.

Rev. George Hall of suburban Hawthorn was commenting on the Victoria state executive council's refusal Monday to commute the Supreme Court's death sentence on Tait.

Tait is due to hang Aug. 22 for the murder at Hall's Hawthorn vicarage of Mrs. Ada Ethel Hall, 81.

Her son was visibly distressed as he spoke to reporters. He said: "My conscience tells me that I must try to help Tait. I would not feel worthy of facing my church congregation unless I tried to influence the government to change its decision."

"I do not believe in the death sentence being carried out on any man, no matter how ghastly his crime might have been."

Negro Mennonite Scores Brethren

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—A Negro Mennonite, jailed last month in Albany, Ga., for a non-violent demonstration against racial conflict, Monday told 300 Mennonites they were "insidiously lukewarm on the challenge of racial brotherhood."

"You send the Indian, the Mexican, the Negro, to missions. Then, should they ask your daughter for a date or speak of loving a member of your family, you tell them that is carrying equality too far," said Vincent Harding, a peace worker for the Mennonite central committee. He was addressing a section meeting on peace at the seventh Mennonite World Conference.

Sent to Atlanta, Ga., last October to develop a service program there and in Nashville, Tenn., he was jailed—along with Martin Luther King Jr., a leader in civil disobedience campaigns for integration—for leading a prayer group July 23 on the Albany City Hall steps.

In many ways, said Mr. Harding, he does not blame the church for not taking a more decisive stand on the racial question.

"You are safe here, but I want you to ask yourself this question. Would you be so self-righteous if you had to attend a non-segregated meeting where your name or your firm's name was taken down and you knew there would be reprisal for attendance?"

B.C. Expected To Start Buying Precinct Land

The provincial government is expected to begin buying some private land in the proposed eight-block Legislative precinct while the city council reconsiders a rezoning bylaw for the area.

Mayor R. B. Wilson today said he did not know what the government was going to do but the city was awaiting a comprehensive report covering all of the James Bay area zoning.

He said until that report was received, no action would be taken on a bylaw draft which would have frozen present land uses in the legislative precinct. The bylaw was tabled after a stormy public hearing opposed it.

Russia Curbs Private Home Building

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government ordered today a crackdown on the building of private homes.

A decree said money and material should be channelled instead into the building of co-operative apartment houses, financed by the prospective tenants and by state credits.

The decree is aimed primarily at the capitals of the various Soviet republics and other large cities, in all of which the housing shortage is especially acute.

Apparently the decree has a two-fold purpose:

1. To check the activities of "speculators" and others who invest their gains in private housing;
2. To get more people to contribute directly to the cost of their apartments.

Under the decree, the state bank will grant a credit of 60 per cent toward the financing of a co-operative apartment house. The remaining 40 per cent must be paid in advance by the individuals who will live in the apartment house. The tenants must repay the state bank credit within 10 or 15 years.

Moscow newspapers disclosed Monday that a Moscow court had sentenced Ivan Kostrov to five years at forced labor because he could not explain where he got the money to buy a private house.

Kostrov spent about 66,000 roubles ($73,333) on household furnishings, a car and high living.

Press reports implied he was suspected of stealing from the state.

Socred Chief Claims Papers Conceal Facts

EDMONTON (CP) — There is a "paper curtain" of opposition by newspapers hanging between Social Credit and the people, national party leader R. N. Thompson said Monday night.

His deputy, Real Caouette of Quebec, agreed and told an Alberta Social Credit League dinner meeting the way to break through the curtain was through television.

Mr. Thompson introduced his deputy as "a stupid, ignorant backwoods boy, as the papers would say."

Said Mr. Caouette:

"Social Credit was a bunch of people from the backwoods in the editorials of June 19. They were farmers. Yes, they were and we were proud to get the farmers' vote. But the backwoods boys voted for the Liberals and Conservatives.

"We elected three members in the city of Quebec, a 27-year-old lawyer by a majority of 10,000 votes in Sherbrooke, a 34-year-old manufacturer in Granby, as prosperous as any city, and a Liberal stronghold for 58 years. We elected a medical doctor."

"To judge from the newspapers," Mr. Caouette said, "the most ignorant person in Alberta at one time was William Aberhart," founder of the Social Credit party.

USE TELEVISION

"He used radio to spread his message because radio was the best available method at the time. Today we bring our message to all 10 provinces on television, so that everyone can hear what we have to say as we say it.

Canada has the manpower, materials and skill it needs and lacks only production, Mr. Caouette said. Usury is wrecking the nation and preventing the consumer from enjoying the abundant fruits of Canada's natural resources.

"I am a garage operator with 27 employees. If I ran my garage the way Diefenbaker administers the affairs of Canada I would certainly be bankrupt tomorrow morning."

The country and all of the provinces except those where Social Credit is in power were heavily in debt.

In an interview earlier, Mr. Caouette said he will swing through the four Western provinces in October organizing for the next election campaign on a platform to include a dividend for everyone.

The dividend would be more than the $25 a person each month associated with Mr. Aberhart because "times have changed, and even the old-line parties provide a dividend today in the form of an old-age pension which is much larger than $25."

"When Mr. Aberhart preached a dividend, we said he was crazy. We were crazy. Look at the situation today. Have you ever seen anyone refuse his family allowance cheque?"

CAOQUETTE WON'T FIGHT FOR CANADA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Real Caouette, deputy national leader of the Social Credit party, says he feels no responsibility to fight for Canada while thousands of unemployed are not sharing the abundance the country could provide.

Mr. Caouette said in an interview he refused to fight in the Second World War because he has no faith in the old-line parties.

Furthermore, he said Saturday, he would never go to war for Canada's present economic system.

'Piece of Meat' In Butcher Shop

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Just remember, never forget that all you are is a piece of meat, like in a butcher shop." These words, actress Kim Novak said Monday night, were spoken to her by a motion picture studio head.

Miss Novak commented on the death of Marilyn Monroe and the tribulations of a film celebrity in a television interview.

"It's pretty awful . . . to think that that's what you are, that you have to look at yourself that way," Miss Novak said, "and the worst part is that you're treated that way."

SAID IT WELL

"Marilyn said it so well . . . about the fact that people don't seem to mind saying it right to your face, or talking about you. But somehow they overdo it, as if they think 'well, we don't want her to get a swollen head,' so we'll just starve her from the heart—everything—not let her have anything—not ever say anything nice.

"It seems like the only solution can be within yourself, because there are too many people you would have to change. You can't go around . . . and say 'Please be nice to me. I'm a human being. Treat me nicely.'"

"With Marilyn," Miss Novak said, "it's so sad because she didn't have a family really. I think you need roots, and certainly you don't get that from this business, and if you have a family that helps a lot, or if you have a religion or something to hold on to."

Australia Budgets $288 Million Deficit

CANBERRA (Reuters) — Australian Treasurer Harold Holt today introduced a 1961-62 budget providing for a deficit of $118,328,000 (about $288,720,300 Canadian).

Holt told the House of Representatives the budget shows the government's determination to follow through with its expansion program until the economy is operating on the highest level Australia can hope to sustain.

Red Chinese, India Agree On More Talks

(Times News Services)

NEW DELHI — Communist China has agreed to India's suggestion that the two countries settle their border dispute peacefully, using as a base their study made in 1960.

The study was made under an agreement between Prime Minister Nehru and Premier Chou En-Lai in April, 1960. India published the 1,000-page study in February, 1961, but China did not officially acknowledge its existence until last May 2, when excerpts were made public.

The Indian version supported India's stand. India claimed the Chinese version was "garbled and truncated."

In a report to Parliament Monday, Nehru said China made this reply to a note of last month which said India was prepared, "as soon as the current tensions have eased and an appropriate climate is created, to enter into further discussions on the India-China boundary question."

Nehru called the Communist reply, received Sunday, rather disappointing because it repeated charges that Indian troops have advanced into Chinese territory.

India says its troops are conducting a legitimate defence of Indian territory.

NEITHER WANTS WAR

The prime minister said China emphasized that neither country wants war over the 51,000 square miles of Himalayan borderland in dispute.

Monday China also made public its note to India proposing resumption of discussions on the dispute "as soon as possible."

Diplomatic observers in Peking noted it was couched in more moderate language than a series of notes last month.

Two of India's leading newspapers today oppose further talks between India and Communist China on the border dispute. They urged the Indian government to take steps to recover territory lost to the Chinese in the Ladakh area of Kashmir.

The independent Hindustan Times declares: "The hour of dishonor is near and will be fully merited by the country unless this misguided government is told clearly and firmly by enraged public opinion 'India's sovereignty is not for barter.'"

One of the editors of the Times of India, writing in the paper's weekly political column, says: "The government is in a real jam."

"The least it can do in the circumstances is to stop its infantile pursuit of sentimental hope in China's potential goodness of heart and to prepare for the worst even on a limited scale."

Airliner Crashes, All Saved

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Seventy persons aboard an American Airlines plane escaped serious injury in a landing crash blamed on gusty winds which blew the plane off a runway during a thunderstorm.

The right wing of the four-engine Electra turbo-prop plane ripped off Monday and caught fire. The fuselage settled about 50 feet away.

Alan Atkin, airport manager, said the separation of the wing and fuselage probably saved the lives of the 65 passengers and five crew members.

"If the wing had not torn off, the plane would have burned with the passengers aboard," Atkin said.

Two persons—a mother and her teen-age daughter, were injured—neither seriously.

The plane was bound from Dallas, Tex., to New York.

Passengers, including Representatives Cliff Davis (Dem. Tenn.) and Dale Alford (Dem. Ark.), hailed stewardess Nancy Root, 23, of Dallas, Tex., as a heroine.

Miss Root hurried her 100-pound body against an emergency door repeatedly until it opened, allowing passengers to escape.

Stingers Close Beach

Colombia 'Trades' Chiefs

BOGOTA (AP) — Colombia completes the first lap on its road to democracy and economic stability with the inauguration of Dr. Guillermo Leon Valencia as president today.

Valencia, 54, a conservative, takes over as president from liberal Alberto Lleras Camargo after four years of a unique political system alternating the presidency between the once warring liberal and conservative parties.

The system was evolved in 1958 as a solution to political fighting which killed about 200,000 Colombians in the preceding decade and led to the dictatorship of Gustavo Rojas Pinilla.

Conservatives and Liberals buried the hatchet to oust Rojas Pinilla in 1957, then kept it buried to lead the country away from dictatorship and financial chaos. Despite challenges from dissidents of both parties, Valencia won 1,746,030 of the total 2,644,384 votes cast in the presidential ballot last May.

Advice From an Expert

MR. DANA WILGRESS HAS been, for nearly half a century, one of Canada's greatest public servants. As ambassador to various foreign nations, as perhaps an unequalled authority on international tariffs and an architect of GATT, he now speaks from retirement to the Canadian people on their proper attitude to the European Common Market and Britain's membership in it. His advice, free of all partisan prejudice, deserves careful consideration from the public.

In his pamphlet, "The Impact of European Integration on Canada," Mr. Wilgress says that Britain's membership in the Common Market would impose obvious and calculable disadvantages on this country in the liquidation of the Commonwealth preference system.

But the long-term advantages to Canada are not calculable in exact figures at the moment since no one can foresee the appetite of an integrated Europe for Canadian goods. Mr. Wilgress concludes, however, that the long-term advantages will compensate Canada for the short-term disadvantages.

He does not believe that the dilution or abandonment of the preference system would be fatal to the Commonwealth, as the Canadian government seems to think. Certainly, he says, the character of the Commonwealth would change, and there would be less emphasis on trade, more on economic aid and political consultation, but in any case "the maintenance of the status quo is untenable in the face of the winds of change."

That is the clear fact which official Canadian policy has tried so long to deny—the existing situation, the current pattern of Canadian trade, cannot last much longer, whether Britain joins the Common Market or not.

The next question, then, is what position Canada should adopt toward the proposed integration of Europe. Mr. Wilgress, with his unequalled experience in such large affairs, offers some wise counsel.

In the first place, he warmly approves President Kennedy's "ambitious and imaginative" plan for a general reduction in the free world's tariffs. He adds that "a similar show of boldness and imagination may be desirable on the part of Canada."

Desirable, yes, but all we have received from the Canadian government so far is a lukewarm endorsement of Mr. Kennedy's program (mixed with Mr. Diefenbaker's needling of the American government in the recent election campaign) and a stonewall opposition to British policy.

Mr. Wilgress notes that some Canadians would have this country take no active part in the negotiation of general tariff reductions. Canada would enjoy the advantages of these reductions, under the multilateral rules of GATT, but contribute none of its own.

That position, Mr. Wilgress thinks, is quite unrealistic. "Implicit in this attitude," he says, "is higher protection for Canadian industry. This would tend to increase costs and make Canadian goods less competitive in world markets. There is the further danger that this attitude would tend to isolate Canada, with a major stake in world trade, from the leading trading powers. Canada would cease to have much influence on subsequent developments."

Therefore Mr. Wilgress urges Canada to co-operate in the broad objectives of President Kennedy's trade initiative and he thinks Canada should indicate its intentions clearly now. Then it should participate actively in the new round of tariff negotiations at GATT next year, offering reasonable tariff concessions to customers who will reciprocate.

All this is sound advice from a man well equipped to give it. We hope that the present government of Canada, or its successor, will listen.

Independent State

A NEWLY INDEPENDENT NATION is a member of the Commonwealth; a new sovereign state will seek membership in the global organization of the United Nations. Jamaica, for more than a century exploited by Spain and for three centuries owned by Britain, is at last its own master.

A melting pot of races if ever there was one, Jamaica comes into its own independence with sound parliamentary experience and a two-party political system at its service. In this regard, unlike some lands which have thrust without political preparation into self-government, it may look to the future with confidence.

'Never Used to Happiness'

MARILYN MONROE'S FIGURE, it has been said, was beautiful enough for two girls. It was an apt expression, for two girls inhabited the curvaceous body — one, the glamorous movie star shining brightly in the cosmos of the entertainment world, the toast of men, the envy of women, the world-famous symbol of feminine allure; the other a frightened, insecure orphan girl who found no peace, no permanent place in life, and never took happiness for granted because she "never was used to it."

Both girls died Saturday night. One perhaps killed the other, but the world may never know which was the victim.

The moralists will draw long

Why Not See Canada?

THE OFFICIAL OPENING OF the Rogers Pass road has been disfigured by some nasty little exchanges between federal and provincial politicians but they will soon be forgotten. The Trans-Canada Highway, from coast to coast, will remain when all politicians and other men now living are dead.

While this scheme took longer to complete than any government expected, the physical results are magnificent. One of the nation's greatest assets is now open to our use.

For the tourist the Trans-Canada Highway can have few equals in the world.

A traveller setting out from Victoria sees first the forest and seashore of Vancouver Island, then the green meadows of the Fraser Valley, the awesome caverns of the Fraser Canyon, the rolling hills of the Dry Belt and the soaring peaks of the Rockies.

After that the flat floor of the Prairies, green in springtime, golden

There are problems to surmount, however. A rapidly increasing population creates difficulties for an island only half the size of Vancouver Island yet with more inhabitants than British Columbia. And the limited range of its exports—sugar, bananas, coffee—will be a handicap now that British financial support has been removed.

There is a sturdy nationhood in Jamaica, however, a love of the island built up over the centuries in a unique social structure. This spirit will do much to help overcome the dilemmas of independence. The Commonwealth will welcome its new member with all best wishes.

themes from Marilyn's career, interspersed with complacent tut-tuts. Sob-sisters will deify her in the Hollywood manner. Financiers will mourn her passing. Aspiring movie actresses will be deterred or spurred on by the lesson of her life, according to their temperaments. But thousands of men and women who may never even have seen her in the films felt a little shock of loss, of sadness, at the news of her death—it was hard to accept that someone who had so epitomized life could so suddenly be without it.

Marilyn Monroe's tragedy was that she experienced too much of the harshness of the world to be able to enjoy its luxury when she finally won it. The gold behind the tinsel turned out to be tinsel too.

In harvest, the painter's favorite country along the Great Lakes, the cosy farm lands of Ontario, the quaint countryside of Quebec, New Brunswick's noble rivers, Nova Scotia's Annapolis Valley, the ancient, wrinkled visage of Halifax and the wild scenery of Newfoundland.

Not many Canadians have travelled all the way across their own country by automobile on the inferior roads of the past. Now they can span the nation in comfort and find it as interesting, and surprising in some ways, as any foreign nation.

From now on, one hopes, Canadians will begin to explore Canada at a large saving in scarce foreign exchange and with a new knowledge of this country's possibilities more precious than money. The highway will pay for itself in promoting business but perhaps its greatest value is intangible—it helps to knit a sprawling and diverse nation together.

The Arrow Mystery

By E. H. DAVIDSON

HIGH level Arrows dam is one of the two mysterious controversies in the Columbia treaty. It will flood the Arrow Lakes valley right into the town of Revelstoke, will destroy 1,800 small holdings and require the eviction of the entire population settled around the lakes for two generations.

It will not produce electric power—it is strictly a storage project to benefit only the United States; but we pay all the costs including expropriations and fixing for the reservoir and for the dam itself. By the treaty, the United States will direct how this storage is to be operated but we will bear the costs of the actual operating.

Then when Mica dam is built about seven years later, Mica will take over the job of regulating waterflow. In the interval, the water controller will try to prohibit the rising of the water of the reservoir beyond a height of 1,444 feet to the level, established by the treaty, of 1,446 feet, without his written permission. In licensing B.C. Hydro Authority, he empowered himself to do this, apparently with the hope of preventing flooding of part of the town of Revelstoke and a CPR bridge and part of its line.

Limited Rise

He has explained that after "Mica dam has reached an advanced stage of construction" Arrows dam need not rise above 1,444 feet.

Larratt Higgins, a well-known power economist, is saying that Arrow Lakes need not be flooded at all; a low level dam at the site plus a power dam at Murphy Creek, a bit south, could regulate Mica's regulation with equal efficiency.

Why is high level Arrows dam in the treaty?

It was not in the agreement handed over to Hon. Davie Fulton to negotiate in 1959, by the International Joint Commission experts. The United States IJC team had thought their side needed it, for a long time; but conservation experts in U.S. ultimately convinced them that they didn't. So prior to 1959 they gave it up, to the gratification of the Canadian team.

The IJC scheme, void of this dam, was handed over to Fulton as the basis of the treaty he was to negotiate formally.

Fulton had no desire, or instructions from the Ottawa government, to alter the IJC scheme. But when Fulton went into action, he was confronted by a demand from Premier Bennett that it be added.

Not An Alternative

This mystified everybody — particularly as British Columbia would have to pay for it and to evict all the B.C. citizens long-settled in the valley. It was not alternative to a project in east Kootenay which would flood another area; it was alternative to a dam at Murphy Creek and a low level dam above that which would steady but not raise the normal levels of the Arrow lakes. If Premier Bennett offered any explanations no one knows what they were.

Fulton's dilemma was that if Premier Bennett insisted, Fulton could not hope to get an effective treaty because the British Columbia government controls rivers within B.C. boundaries.

Fulton gave in reluctantly; his reasoning appears to have been that the U.S. negotiators were pleased to approve Fulton's concession because it was something they had wanted earlier, and that the B.C. public would understand that it was the B.C. government and not the Ottawa government which was responsible for making displaced persons of the B.C. citizens in the Arrow lakes valley.

And he supposed this was the only demand Bennett wanted to make. He did not discover until sometime later, that it was not. Almost his first action as negotiator was to negotiate this revision of the IJC scheme.

Had there been no further demands by Premier Bennett, this dam might have been explained as having the utility of enabling the United States to produce downstream benefit power about seven years earlier than it could with the unrevised IJC plans.

Planned to Sell

As half of that downstream production would be returned to Canada, that might be an advantage to B.C.—if B.C. needed the half-share in a hurry. But after awhile it came out that Premier Bennett didn't think B.C. needed the power at all—he proposed to sell it to the United States for cash.

He has been saying that he would use the cash to finance Mica dam. But what cash is he going to use to build high Arrow dam?

Why not have used that cash to build Mica dam to the "advanced stage of construction" at which it begins to enable U.S. to produce downstream benefit power, half of which would be returned to finish Mica dam? As Mica dam will always enable the U.S. to produce downstream benefit power, Mica could be financed on that collateral.

As it is, both dams have to share the collateral. Should Ottawa deny Premier Bennett the right to sell downstream benefit power to the United States for cash, or should United States decline to buy Canada's share? Premier Bennett will be stuck for both dams, one of which will produce no power whatever.

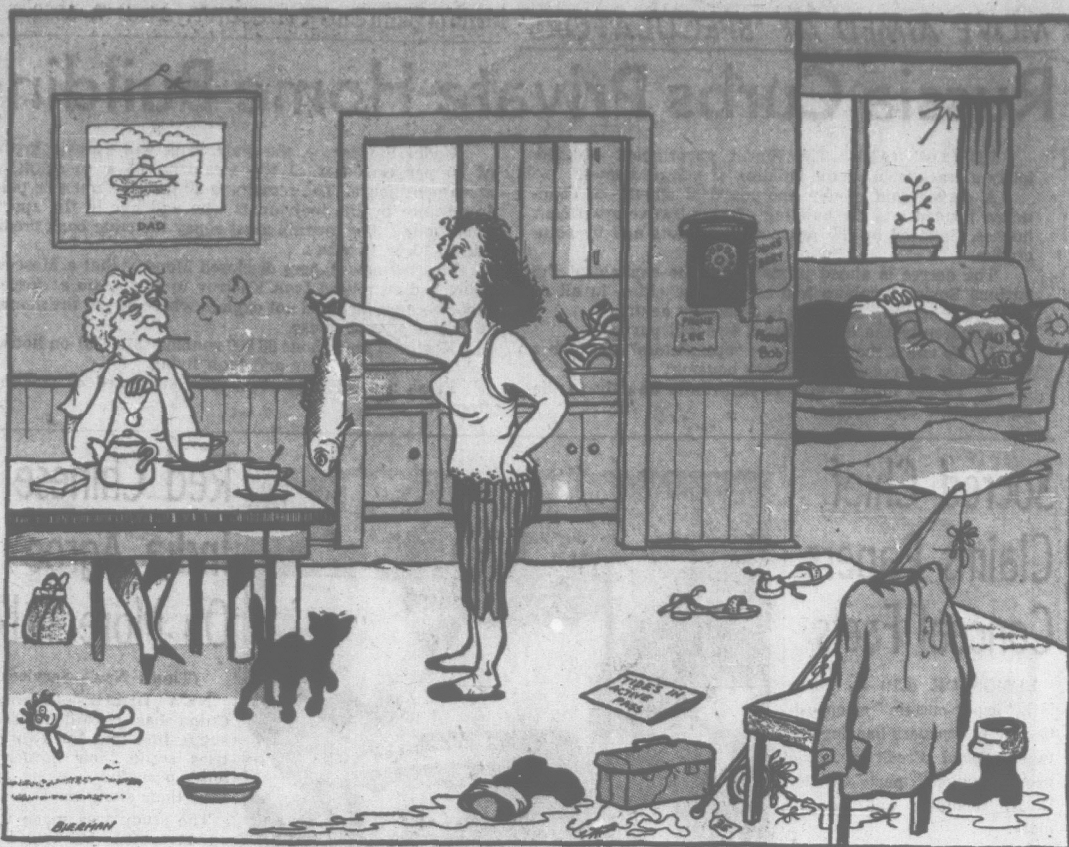

How does he reason?

The prevailing fashion in fiction of making heroes or semi-heroes out of delinquents, especially juvenile delinquents, is salutary in a way because it reminds us to be indulgent to other people's shortcomings as well as our own; but pushed too far it may become dangerous by enlisting too much sympathy for the criminal.

A PLACE IN THE SUN

By J. HALCRO FERGUSON

Nationhood: the Land of Wood and Water

JAMAICA, the largest of the British Caribbean islands, yesterday achieved its independence within the Commonwealth. It is the first wholly English-speaking country to do so since Australia and New Zealand were granted Dominion status in 1901 and 1907.

Jamaica was discovered by Christopher Columbus in 1494 and called by him Santiago, or St. James, but later reverted to its original name of Xaymaca, or land of wood and water, though the Arawak Indians who named it and who still figure as supporters on its coat-of-arms were wiped out during a century and a half of Spanish rule. In 1655 it was captured by the English Admiral Venables and has remained British ever since.

The island is only 144 miles long and less than 50 miles wide, but it has a population of 1,500,000—a very high density in view of the mountainous character of much of its area and the comparative lack of employment other than agriculture.

Sixty per cent of the people are of African origin, descendants of the slaves brought in by the Spanish and later the British to work the sugar plantations before slavery was abolished in 1834.

Mixed Blood

The next largest section of the population is made up of brown-skinned people of mixed European and African blood, who form the bulk of the middle class. There are also a number of Indians, descended from indentured laborers brought in to work the cane fields after the abolition of slavery, as well as Chinese, Sephardic Jews, Syrian-Lebanese, and so-called white Jamaicans whose ancestors once owned most of the island.

These last four communities are most prominent in business; educated browns and Negroes tend to go in for politics and the professions; Indians (locally called East Indians) are found in all walks of life. The working class and the rural peasantry (the "quashies") are almost entirely Negro.

At the bottom of the social scale are the so-called Ras Tafari, mostly unemployed Negroes living in the shanty-slum town of West Kingston; they have named their sect after the Emperor of Ethiopia, want to go back to Africa, wear beards and refuse to work for a community which seems to have no place for them.

Modern Protest

There is a twentieth century protest against poverty and lack of opportunity. An earlier protest, against oppression, led a number of escaped slaves to take refuge in the mountainous Cockpit Country and fend off all attempts at recapture, so that the British Government was finally forced to sign a treaty and to leave them alone.

The treaty still holds good, and the Maroons, as they are called, run their own affairs in their isolated district with its picturesque placenames like the Land of Look Behind.

Most Jamaicans at one time or another have had reason to be discontented with their lot, but they have not gone to the extremes of the Ras Tafari or the Maroons. Their solution has been emigration, usually with the idea of returning rich.

Originally the emigrants went to nearby countries or to the United States, many never to return. There are still thousands of Jamaicans in Panama whose parents and grandparents went to build the Panama Canal—and they remain black Britons in a Latin nation. When Queen Elizabeth passed through Panama on her round-the-world tour in 1954 the Panamanian authorities were caught unprepared for the size of the crowds: they had forgotten about their Jamaican minority.

Of recent years most of the immigrant countries, having a population problem of their own, have banned the entry of Jamaicans, and the United States closed the last nearby door when it took West Indians off the unfilled United Kingdom immigration quota and put them on a much smaller quota of their own.

As a result, since the Second World War Jamaicans have been pouring into Britain at the rate of several thousands a year. On July 1 this year the Commonwealth Immigrants Act confined immigration to those holding work permits: the results of this on the nascent nation have yet to be seen.

Despite their racial mixture the Jamaicans have a recognizable national character, independent and extrovert, which tends to irritate other West Indians from what Jamaicans patronizingly refer to as the Small Islands. For many years now there has been no color bar in Jamaica, though black Jamaicans still complain that they are never given jobs in certain businesses, e.g. banks (which are British and Canadian-owned).

More Eligible

There is a distinct shade-consciousness, which feels that light skin is "better" than black and straight hair "better" than kinky, a hangover from slavery days which still makes light-skinned people more eligible as marriage partners.

Among the middle class, particularly the intellectuals, this prejudice is beginning to disappear, but it still operates in reverse among the underprivileged Negroes who form the majority. As a result, under universal suffrage, it is rather a disadvantage to a politician not to be black.

The country is still largely dependent on its old basic products, sugar, bananas and Blue Mountain coffee. Now there are new light industries, as well as bauxite, which fills the coffers of the treasury but provides little extra employment. There is the tourist trade on the north coast, geared to the U.S. tourists—who see a Jamaica quite different from that known to most of its inhabitants. And, taking the long-term view, there is the University College of the West Indies, which should produce graduates capable of coping with the country's problems.

Good Show

Heartiest congratulations to all who gave of their time and talent to make the Story of Victoria such a wonderful success. No one should have missed this gayety and reverence, which portrayed the past—a living memory, the vivid present, and the spirit of the future displayed by the glow of thousands of tiny lights, a sight not easily to be forgotten. Many, I know, will join with me in thanks and admiration of a wonderful achievement. One wonders if it could be televised for shut-ins and others far and wide to see. Again, congratulations.

Is Cruelty Useful?

The people who attack with scant regard for truth and justice, the defenders of animals, have stated, in letters to newspapers, that cruelty is necessary. If it is necessary it should be useful, yet Cicero said: "No cruelty is useful."

The fact that we got rid of cruelty to people shows that it is not necessary. When we have abolished all cruelty to animals, then we shall realize that that was not necessary, either.

Those who defend experiments on animals talk about the innumerable benefits that have resulted from them, yet they seem in no hurry to mention even one of these benefits.

They also seem to be ignorant of the fact that improved sanitation and improved drinking water have been our great blessings, together with a better understanding of hygiene on the part of the people themselves.

There is a kind and a cruel method of training a child, a horse, or a dog. Only a sadist would use the cruel method.

Canada is a Christian country, but experiments on animals do not belong to the Christian religion and are an insult to the Creator. Should vivisection go, or should religion go?

CRUSADER.

Voice of Women

I would like to express the gratitude of the Victoria Committee of the Voice of Women to your paper, for carrying the items from Toronto and Ottawa in rebuttal of the charges made by Mr. McDonald regarding Communist infiltration of the Association.

It seems incredible that a man with the ethics of a stool pigeon should be dignified by a nationwide television interview, and allowed the freedom of the invidious smear, without being asked for proof of these allegations. Mr. McDonald has since signed a statement admitting their falsehood.

Our association will continue to work with a single purpose and for one goal; a better understanding between women of all countries who honestly desire a peaceful climate, unshrouded by the miasmas of fear and suspicion, in which their children can attain full maturity.

Struggle for Markets

"... We stand at the great divide; we must either trade or fade." Thus spoke President Kennedy, May 4th.

In 1939 Adolph Hitler declared: "The German nation must live; that means export or die." To which Oliver Stanley, president of Britain's Board of Trade, replied: "Our existence (also) depends on our international trade. We cannot stand idly by and see our markets lost." A few months later World War 2 began.

Said Kennedy: "They (the Communist nations) are ready to take and sell any area in which we leave a gap. And we do not intend to give way."

Such is the desperation of the nations in the struggle for world markets—the root cause of modern wars. It is the struggle to dispose of increasing surpluses resulting from the inability of an exploited working class to buy back more than a fraction of its product.

The Socialist Labor Party teaches the only solution—production for social use instead of private profit through genuine Socialism.

JAMES MINAL
South Burnaby, B.C.

"HEY, MOM! COULD HE COME IN AND GET COLD?"

Gerald Waring ...REPORTING

OTTAWA—Our genial postie, Mr. Jones, stopped by the other day for two cents postage due, and we learned with consternation that he won't even remember our name if the posties go on a slowdown strike.

He's a member of the Canadian Association of Letter Carriers—like a posties' union, except they haven't got collective bargaining rights. They and other post office workers are resentful because the government has frozen their wage rates, as well as the pay of the rest of the civil service, to help reduce the deficit.

So the posties are saying that maybe they'll do what the British posties did a few months ago to underline wage demands. They'll "work by the rule," obeying literally and in full all the nit-picking rules the bosses have laid down for them to follow.

"In England it took eight days for a letter to go from London to Edinburgh," Mr. Jones said grinning, with Kennedy-like disregard of Edinburgh's location outside England. "It should take at least a week from Ottawa to Toronto."

For example, one rule says that every letter must be properly addressed, including the name of the city in which it is to be delivered. But many persons addressing mail for local delivery merely write "City" instead of the city's name. If the postmen decide to work by the rule they will refuse to deliver such mail on the ground that it is not properly addressed.

Similarly a letter carrier may have on his walk a John Smith, say, at 21 Elm Street. He is handed a letter to deliver to John Smith at 23 Elm Street. He knows very well that John Smith lives next door, but he won't deliver the letter there because it is not properly addressed.

Such letters would be returned to the local post office's directory bureau, far too many for the staff to handle, and mountains of undelivered mail would pile up.

Another jam-up would occur at the parcel post wicket. There's a rule enjoining employees from giving the public false information. A man asks how much it would cost to send a 10-pound parcel to Vancouver. The parcel post employee knows—but "to avoid giving false information" he checks the book on rates, and takes minutes instead of seconds to serve the customer.

Another rule is that the employee must ask the customer if he wants his parcel insured. Normally when there's a rush on they don't ask. But in a slowdown they would ask every time, as inasmuch as insurance is free up to a value of $25 most of the replies would be affirmative, adding up to more time, more slowdown.

The work-by-rule technique makes automations out of the posties. Any way to save time or money—they don't take it. Any occasion to apply common sense—they don't use it. Even Mr. Jones' cheery greeting, which I off annually with $5 at Christmas, could scarcely survive if he can't even remember where I live when he gets a letter to me addressed "City."

If a slowdown materializes, it likely won't be before next spring. That's when the government will be faced with a recommendation for increases in the posties' pay. But even at this distance the prospect is disturbing. Mail service like it was 100 years ago, and not a flicker of recognition from Mr. Jones as he plods stolidly by with my mail in his bag marked "addressee unknown."

THE LIGHTER SIDE

By DICK WEST

The Mower Snarls at Midnight

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A suburban neighbor of mine subscribes to a number of quasi-technical magazines—"Home Mechanics," "Popular Embroidering," and that sort of thing.

In the backyard the other day he was telling me about an article he had read on the prospects of developing electronic computers for household uses.

"The article predicts that it will eventually be possible to buy computer attachments for power lawn mowers," he said. "That will be the millennium we have all been searching for."

As he explained it, quoting from the magazine, you would hook the computer to your mower and cut your grass in the usual way.

The computer would record the distances traversed, the directions travelled and the angle of the turns, storing this information in its "memory cell."

Then, the next time your lawn wanted trimming, you would simply fire up the mower and send it off on its own.

Guided by the computer, it would duplicate the route you had previously covered, including the accidental detour into the flower bed to decapitate a couple of geraniums.

While this was happening, the master of the house could retire to the hammock and read the latest issue of "Popular Embroidering." And that isn't all.

As foreseen by the magazine, the more advanced models of the computer-mower would be housed in a tiny garage equipped with "electric eye" controls.

The beam of the "eye" would be located about four inches above the ground, so that when the grass grew to that height it would break the circuit. This would cause the garage door to open.

The mower would then emerge, cut the lawn as previously described, and return to the garage. Thus the home owner would be assured of a neat lawn all summer, even while away on vacation.

"Sounds wonderful, doesn't it?" my neighbor exclaimed. "I can hardly wait until they get it on the market."

I admitted it made the future look rosy, but at the same time I was beset by certain misgivings.

"Suppose," I said, "that the grass happened to reach the height of four inches at two o'clock in the morning. What's to keep your mower from charging out and waking up the whole neighborhood?"

I was sorry I said it, because it ruined his entire day. Crestfallen, he headed for the house, presumably to cancel a magazine subscription.

All is not lost, however, if science can develop a computerized lawn mower, there's no reason why it can't also produce a type of grass that will stop growing at midnight.

SOUTH AFRICAN LAW

Censorship Gags Prisoner's Plea

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—"His words cannot go into print."

So said a headline in the Johannesburg Star. It appeared over a story about a South African court case involving Leon Levy and the story said in part:

"After the charge had been placed, Magistrate D. J. Bosman asked, 'What do you plead?'"

"Levy: He did plead but his words cannot be published." Leon Levy's name is on a list of 102 South Africans whose spoken words and writings, at the time, could not be published in the press.

In this way the government of Premier Hendrik Verwoerd sought to crack down on those it calls subversives and Communists.

Under pressure, the government later modified the ban. Newspapers were told they could publish testimony given in court by persons on the boycott list "as long as it is not abused to provide a forum to such persons to evade the Anti-Sabotage Act."

FEAR COMMUNISM

The government claimed it needed the law to stop what it called a rising tide of communism over this segregated nation. The Liberals charged it was a weapon forged by Verwoerd's regime to hold on to its policies of strict segregation of Negroes and other non-whites from whites.

On the list is Albert Lutuli, the Negro leader and winner of the Nobel Peace prize for his fight against segregation—called apartheid here.

Under the law, newspapers could publish Lutuli's obituary but if a banned person orates at his funeral—not a word of that can be published. A reporter given a statement by Lutuli must first get permission to publish from Justice Minister Balthazar Vorster.

Anti-Bomb Demonstrations Widespread After Red Test

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Anti-bomb groups demonstrated on both sides of the Iron Curtain Monday in the wake of Russia's big nuclear test blast Sunday and the 17th anniversary of the atom-bombing of Hiroshima.

In Moscow, police moved in quickly when three visiting Japanese students waved a banner protesting resumption of the nuclear tests—a development that has been kept secret so far from the Russian people.

In Helsinki, Finland, 75 banner-bomb demonstrators attempted to carry signs protesting nuclear tests in the windup parade of the Communist-organized eighth world youth festival. Angry Red officials surrounded the youths and tore up their posters.

ARREST CANADIAN

A small group of delegates delivered protest letters to both the Soviet and American embassies in Helsinki. Canadian delegate Gerald Daechsel of Toronto was arrested when he appeared outside the Soviet embassy carrying a banner reading, "No Hiroshima."

In New York, several hundred members of groups opposed to nuclear testing marched on the UN headquarters for a rally marking the anniversary of Hiroshima.

In Canada, the Halifax committee on nuclear disarmament was blocked by Canadian Legionnaires from approaching a war memorial to place a wreath in memory of Hiroshima victims.

In Tokyo, the Communist-dominated eighth world congress against nuclear weapons ended on an angry note, with Socialists walking out after denouncing Communist delegates for refusing to condemn Russia.

Mrs. Olive Johnson of Vancouver, vice-chairman of the Canadian campaign for nuclear disarmament, told reporters she wanted to disassociate herself completely from the congress.

TOOK WRONG ATTITUDE

Mrs. Johnson said many of the delegates tried to keep the Tokyo meeting "on a broad humanitarian basis" but many others took the attitude, "If you're not on my side, you don't belong here."

"The Moscow meeting was not high-handed like this one," she said.

The congress did a "great disservice to the cause of peace and failed the thousands of people in Japan and the rest of the world who are genuinely working for an end to nuclear tests and the arms race itself."

The conference was largely devoted to attacks on the foreign policy of the U.S. while almost ignoring the part played by the U.S.S.R. in the arms race.

HOME GARDEN

By JACK BEASTALL

Plan Now For Winter, Spring

In gardening one has to be constantly looking ahead and planning ahead. The jobs that can be done on the spur of the moment are few and far between.

Right now we are planning the winter and spring supply of vegetables. The savor cabbage Brussels sprouts, and kale plants were set out last month. They take care of the "greens" through February and possibly into March.

Parsnips sown this season are left in the soil and dug as needed while the supply lasts. These are always better flavored after a few sharp frosts.

The early sowings of leeks are figured to take care of late fall needs, and the June sowing will be ready for use after Christmas.

If some of these are still in the seed-bed they can be set out as vacancies turn up in the vegetable rows. Prepare the soil well, make dibble holes about five inches deep, and drop one seedling into each hole.

The leaves will probably just come to the top of the hole, which is correct for leek planting. A good watering will wash sufficient soil into the holes to cover the roots, and the portion which grows below soil level will be blanched without the trouble of mounding soil or wrapping the stems.

To continue the "greens" into May, the seed of Flower-of-Spring cabbage is sown this week, and the seedlings spaced out in a prepared bed as soon as they can be handled.

The plants will go into the vegetable garden in late September, without any fertilizer and in well-firmed soil. The idea is to grow them tough so that they withstand whatever the winter may bring.

By March next year they will be loose leaves which can be used if needed, or they will make a loose head by mid-May if given a feeding of nitrogenous fertilizer in early March to boost the spring growth.

2 Provinces Near Deal On Sales Tax

Ontario and Quebec are near a pioneer agreement to stamp out sales tax cheaters.

When made, it will be passed on to other provinces to join, Quebec Premier Jean Lesage said Monday.

Ontario Premier J. P. Roberts confirmed that talks have been held and that an agreement is near.

The issue was raised at the conference of provincial premiers here.

The tax cheaters buy expensive goods outside their home province and have them shipped to their residence, skipping provincial taxes. They should pay tax in their home province.

Mr. Lesage earlier suggested that merchants be made agents for collecting sales tax of all provinces. (All but Manitoba and Alberta have them).

At the conclusion of Monday afternoon's conference session, Mr. Lesage said any agreement should give the right of provinces to audit each other's tax receipts in order to check that payment had been made to the merchants involved.

Teeth Problems of Dogs

For reasons unknown, dogs rarely have trouble with their lower teeth. Their dental problems are on a higher plane—in their uppers.

CLINIC: Q. I saw a Margay at a cat show recently and fell in love with it. Would you advise one for a house pet? Is any special care required?

M.K.K., Toledo, Ohio

A. No special care is required, but the Brazilian-born Margay, known also as a long-tailed cat, is considerably more difficult to train. You will need tremendous patience to control and train this breed of cat. My advice is that you will be happier with a domestic breed.

CLINIC: Q. We recently bought a power mower and it's become a tremendous fascination for our dog.

Every time I take the mower out he runs around it, leaps at it and barks furiously. He does it in fun, not anger or fright, but I'm afraid he might get hurt. How can I break this habit?

R.H.R., Provo, Utah

A. Your dog's cavorting with your power mower is on borrowed time. This is a difficult habit to break, and time is not on your dog's side—so make certain he's in the house or penned when you mow the lawn. Mowers and dogs don't mix. When they do, the dog comes off a painful second best. That mower blade will amputate a dog's leg before he even knows he's hurt. When the mower is out, keep your dog in.

CLINIC: Q. We're planning to take our dog on a motor trip of the west. Are there any necessities we should pack for him?

Mrs. J.P.P., Paoli, Pa.

A. Since your dog will be subjected to new experiences and places, familiar articles will be particularly reassuring to him. Take along his familiar eating dish, his regular foods, his sleeping pad or box. For health and security reasons, attach a complete identification tag to his collar, and be certain to carry a health and rabies certificate from your veterinarian. These will be required in some areas. It would be well, too, to give your dog a check-up to make certain he's physically fit for such a trip and has all necessary shots. If your dog has any particular toys he's fond of, take them along, too.

Pope Blesses All Refugees

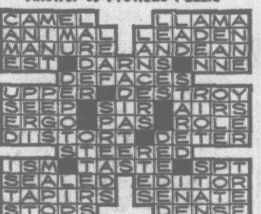

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John Sunday received a candle built around a piece of concentration camp barbed wire and then gave his blessing to the world's refugees and immigrants.

The exchange occurred during a papal audience with 5,000 pilgrims who came here from North and South America, Europe and Australia. All live outside the lands of their birth because of political, economic or religious reasons. They represented millions of other refugees and immigrants who also have been forced to seek new homelands.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations. Pain was promptly relieved, and while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

NEW YORK—Eddie Fisher's r-r-really made it big—why, you may even be seeing him back on TV. I've just learned that NBC, which released him from his contract at his own request when the public was ag'in him, has asked the Wm. Morris agency whether he's available now for television. The answer, as you can imagine, is "Is he available? YIPPEEEEEE!"

Zsa Zsa Gabor and Bob Stralio broke up for the 900th time and Zsa dated Herman Levin. "We're completely through and if I ever date her again I'm a nut," Stralio said at El Morocco. He added: "I love her." Jayne Mansfield's willing to blow her whole American career on that Italian beau, she admits. All she wants to do is loil around Venice with him and love, love, love. Add Goofy Signs: "Girls in Bikinis Will Please Refrain From Sneezing."

LYCKING THE HEAT—Winzig, a miniature Schnauzer, prepares to take part in the Gemutlichkeit with a stein of beer provided by his masters, Dr. and Mrs. Lyndon Carman, on a warm day in Englewood, Colo.

"Bobby Kennedy urges physical fitness," says a headline. Yes, sir, you got to be in good shape to get out of that swimming pool with your clothes on.

Natalie Wood, who strips in "Gypsy," learned all about the art from Gypsy Rose Lee who, strangely, never took anything off. Just her gloves and earrings.

Very popular Phil Ford and Mimi Hines are probably getting their own half-hour TV show (Tom McDermott of 4-Star's got a deal on). Which reminds me: Mimi, in their cafe act at the Vegas Desert Inn, says she heard two girls talking, like this: "In person, Mimi looks just like she does on TV."

"Yeah—and all the time we thought it was something wrong with the set!"

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions by letter to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Meyer Wolman, age 12, Cleveland, Ohio, for his question:

Why is stamp collecting called philately?

Stamp collecting started around 1840, soon after the first postage stamps were invented. The ladies of Victorian England were charmed by the pretty scraps of paper with their romantic histories of world travel. At first, collecting stamps was just a fad and people called it timbromania. The word philately was invented when the fad developed into a serious hobby.

Philately is coined from two Greek words and usually the origin of a word gives a clue to its meaning. But this one is baffling. The Greek words from which philately is coined mean someone-who-loves-tax-free-things—or in other words, someone who hates taxes. It is hard to see how this word applies to an earnest collector of government postage stamps.

In the early days of postal service, the postage rate was paid by the person who received the letter. This was changed when the postage stamp was invented in 1840. The cost of mailing was then paid by the sender and the little stamp on the letter was proof that the cost of mailing, or tax for mailing, had been paid. The person who received the letter got a tax free stamp because the tax had already been paid.

Collecting Started As Fad

Philatelist is a very grand sounding word for a person who collects postage stamps. It was invented by a Frenchman in 1865, just when the serious stamp collectors needed a grand name for themselves. For stamp collecting started as a merry fad and people made fun of the ladies who collected enough stamps to paper their dressing rooms.

People called these ardent collectors timbromaniacs—and any kind of maniac, of course, is someone with a crazy mania. The first stamps bore pictures of Queen Victoria and it was said that the stamp faddists were more eager than King Henry VIII to collect queen's heads. Timbre is the French word for postage stamp and timbromania meant a mania for postage stamps.

The timbromaniacs did not care what kind of stamps they collected, so long as they had a lot of them. But the stamp-saving craze developed into a serious hobby and collectors became choosy about their stamps. The rare ones, the beautiful ones and the unusual ones became valuable and today, there are philatelists who have stamp collections worth many thousands of dollars.

A certain stamp printed in 1856 is the only one of its kind in the world and valued at $150,000. In 1913, a few American air mail stamps were printed with an airplane upside down. They sold for 24 cents, but because of the upside down error, they are now worth $4,000 apiece—to a philatelist.

Andy sends a Hammond's Nature Atlas of America to Sharon Freedman, age 13, of Portland, Me., for her question:

What does air contain?

The gases of the air are mixed together like assorted grains of colored sands. The proportion of gases is more or less the same wherever we sample the air at the surface of the earth. Almost 100 per cent of the sample will be three gases. Nitrogen makes up about 78 per cent of the air, oxygen about 21 per cent and argon gas accounts for about one per cent.

Six other gases are present in amounts less than one-tenth of one per cent. They are carbon dioxide, hydrogen, neon, helium, krypton and xenon. A sample of air also contains some water vapor, dust, pollen, soot and salty sea spray—though these items cannot be given a percentage among the normal gases of the air.

Richfield Oil Cancels B.C. Offshore Permits

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

The dispute between the federal government and the government of B.C. over ownership of offshore oil rights took a new turn recently when Richfield Oil Corporation cancelled its B.C. permit rights on a large tract of offshore acreage.

Richfield, a pioneer in B.C. offshore operations, still holds federal permits for the acreage which comprises 792,908 acres in Hecate Strait, east of Graham Island in the Queen Charlotte.

The company had held the provincial permits since May 30, 1958, and took out federal permits on the same acreage on June 29, 1960.

Richfield now joins Shell Oil Company of Canada Ltd. in holding only federal permits for huge tracts of potentially oil-bearing offshore acreage. Shell's holdings are to the south and east of the Richfield permits.

Both Canadian Oil Companies

panies Ltd. and Calgary and Edmonton Corporation have B.C. offshore oil lands under federal and provincial permits.

REVERTS TO CROWN

So far as the province is concerned the Richfield move causes the 792,908 acres to revert to the Crown in the right of the province. The lands could be put up for bids at a provincial oil land sale, as was done with part of the acreage held by Shell under federal permit.

Richfield is reportedly uncertain as to which of the governments owns the mineral rights to the offshore lands but cancelled its B.C. permits for economy reasons.

Under provincial permit, oil companies must pay annual rental and undertake work commitments while under federal permit only a work commitment is made. The provincial permit required Richfield to pay a rental of 5 cents an acre and spend 25 cents an acre for the fourth year with the commitment rising to 75 cents an acre in the eighth year of the permit.

The land can be held under federal permit by spending 5 cents an acre annually for three years rising to 25 cents in the fourth and fifth years and to 50 cents in steps at the end of 12 years.

The federal-provincial dispute, boiled into prominence a year ago but died down in a few weeks when it became clear that neither party was ready to test the validity of its claim in the courts.

Most industry observers believe that ownership of the lands is not likely to be established until a major strike is made in the offshore lands.

The question of royalty payments would then arise and the producing company would have to seek a court judgment to determine which government was entitled to the payments.

Meat Rationing For E. Germans

BERLIN (AP)—East Germany's Communist regime announced Monday introduction of customer lists—a form of rationing—for meat and sausage.

No mention was made of what quantities would be handed out. Western experts expect the amounts to vary, with some East Germans getting less than a half a pound and others more than a pound a week.

Under the customer-list system each consumer must register with a single shop. He gets his share of whatever the shop has on hand. No sales are made to unregistered customers.

Heath Sees Commonwealth Envoys on ECM Progress

LONDON (CP)—Edward Heath, Britain's chief negotiator with the Common Market, held separate meetings today with Commonwealth high commissioners and ambassadors of the rival seven-country European Free Trade Association.

Although the Brussels talks failed to reach completion on the crucial question of farm exports from the Commonwealth, Heath said "a great deal of useful progress" was made.

A high British government source, in denying reports from Common Market quarters in Brussels that negotiations had broken down, said that a large measure of agreement was reached.

He also said that a good part of the general outline relating to Britain's membership application had been worked out.

This will give the Commonwealth prime ministers plenty to talk about when they meet in London.

Harsh Alternatives Face Independent Oil Firms

By JOHN MATTERS

CALGARY (CP)—Independent companies, which figured prominently in the rags-to-riches development of Western Canada's oil industry, today face a harsh set of alternatives: They will have to go up or down in a hurry.

As talk of take-overs and mergers circulate in almost every quarter of this oil capital, there is much serious thought being given to the future of the industry as a whole.

Most of the independents have grown out of the fabulous oil boom in the West, initiated when the famous Leduc field was discovered 15 years ago. They began in the exploration end and later became producers.

Some industry spokesmen view the trend toward progressive reduction in the number of independents with alarm. They fear that if more business is concentrated in the hands of big organizations it will pave the way for nationalization of the industry.

On the other hand, the oil industry today is in the midst of the fiercest competition in its history. The large companies not only are trying to implement economies in their operations, but must acquire fast-disappearing proven reserves as well.

COMPETITION STIFFENS

George McMahon, president of Pacific Petroleum Limited, told a shareholders' meeting a year ago that it was becoming increasingly difficult for independent oil companies to compete with the integrated majors.

He made the remark in explaining why Pacific Petroleum was going under the wing of Phillips Petroleum. He also predicted that many other independents would follow suit. This has been the case.

Take-over gossip has been flying since three foreign-controlled companies made offers for three Canadian-owned firms. This has resulted in the unusual buoyancy of Western oils on the stock markets in the last two weeks.

The biggest surprise was Shell Oil Company of Canada Limited's offer of $114,000,000 for Canadian Oil Companies

Limited, a Toronto-based firm. Industry spokesmen consider that Canadian Oil had built itself into an enviable position in the eyes of other independents. It has almost everything any major integrated company boasts—production and marketing facilities, refineries, gas processing plants and oil tanker ships.

SHELL MAKES BID
Shell Oil, Canadian arm of the vast international royal dutch shell group, made the take-over bid through its wholly owned subsidiary, Hesper Oil Company Limited.

The offer, which took Canadian Oil executives by surprise, has not yet been accepted by the shareholders. The talk is that three other majors are sitting back waiting to court Canadian if its marriage with Shell does not take place.

British-American Oil Company Ltd., a United States-controlled giant, is trying to buy up Superior Propane Limited, Canada's largest propane distributor.

Earlier this year B-A bought out Anglo American Exploration, a Calgary-based firm that markets products under the parity brand. The purchase involved $7,562,000 and included a refinery and 717 marketing outlets.

There also has been acquisition of juniors by senior independents. This year United Oils Ltd., took over Jumping Pound Petroleum Ltd., Western Decalita Petroleum Ltd., acquired control of Freedhold Gas and Oil Ltd.

Industry spokesmen stress that many of the independents now operating are in good shape financially and can look forward to years of growth and progress.

"The thinking behind the purchase of shares or assets by independent companies is economy of operation and the ability to purchase, at what we think desirable prices, proven oil which is becoming increasingly difficult to acquire in Crown sales," said Charles S. Lee, president of Western Decalita.

Strong independents planning to expand often find it easier to purchase shares or assets of established companies instead of bidding on Crown sales.

Another industry observer explained that smaller companies might not fight off because they do not have a good chance of finding new oil and gas reserves at reasonable prices.

Shop Plaza Hearing To Be Held

An application for architectural approval of a shopping plaza strip between Tillicum and Burnside Roads was referred by Saanich council Monday to a public hearing.

Dalmar Holdings Ltd., the developer, wants to build a chain of 10 shops and a drive-in ice cream stand on about 200 feet of land between an existing supermarket and a garden-type apartment development just below Trans-Canada Highway.

The string would take up almost the entire distance between Tillicum and Burnside, which is a short block.

Municipal planner Tony Parr recommended against the plan for two reasons.

UNSUITABLE

He said the land is too small for such a development and the drive-in is unsuitable for the location.

Council ordered withholding a building permit and will call a public hearing on the matter of rezoning the land from commercial, as it was for the supermarket, to shopping plaza, over which council has a greater degree of control.

Pension Raise For Ex-Saanich Employees

Ex-Saanich employees who retired before April 1, 1957, are due for pension increases of between $9.80 and $25 a month, effective September 1.

Following the lead of other municipalities at the suggestion of the provincial government, the council finance committee recommended the increases on Monday night.

A total of 17 superannuated employees are eligible for the increases, recommended because pensions of people who retired before April, 1957, are considerably lower than those who retired since.

Cost to Saanich will be in the neighborhood of $200 a month, diminishing as the recipients pass on.

The money comes from superannuation investment fund earnings over and above 4 per cent.

VICTORIA, B.C., TUESDAY, AUGUST 7, 1962—PAGE 11

ARTHUR MAYSE

We go outdoors most Tuesdays, but today I find myself nagged at by a tag of Elizabethan verse and a remembered picture. The picture, crux of an exceptionally sensitive Hollywood film called "The Misfits," shows a woman protesting in a fit of hysteria man's brutality to a wild horse.

Doll-sized against the immensity of a desert flat, the woman stamps and shrieks her agony of spirit to a sky in which no pity sits. Out of context, her antics would be ludicrous. But as they proceed through frenzy to exhaustion, the viewer recognizes a deeper rebellion—the lashing-out of one small and futile human against life itself.

The scene isn't high art, and the actress who played it—in a script written by one of her ex-husbands—fell short of greatness. But to my mind it epitomizes the Marilyn Monroe story better than any spate of words could do.

On Sunday, as even the Russians must know by this time, the girl who after three marriages and two miscarriages we still call Miss Monroe pressed her protest against life to the ultimate conclusion. If she left written reasons to explain her suicide, they have not yet been revealed.

Perhaps her own quoted words, "It might be kind of a relief to be finished," offer the most tangible clue.

Her life was hard. Born out of wedlock to a mother who has reportedly spent a good deal of her time in mental institutions, she was shunted from one foster home to the next as Norma Jean Baker. She married appallingly young but found no escape in marriage, although had her luck been better she might have enjoyed comfortable anonymity as an aircraft worker's wife.

Instead, by reason of a fair face and an arresting set of measurements, she had the horrible misfortune to achieve her dearest dream. She became a Hollywood star, and the sex symbol of her generation. The world she had yearned for then proceeded to destroy her.

I don't know that world as an insider, but I've glimpsed

it from its peripheries on occasion, and want no part of it. It does curious and disturbing things to people.

Certain of my friends have invaded it, one or two with spectacular success. They aren't happy people, by my standards or theirs. They don't sleep well, they take their martinis dryer than is good for a person, and most of them have changed partners at least once. I can't unwind them, and doubt that even their analysts can.

The world that claimed them, and killed poor little Norma Jean Baker, is as unreal as any other product of Madison Avenue. I think my world, and probably yours, are very much better places.

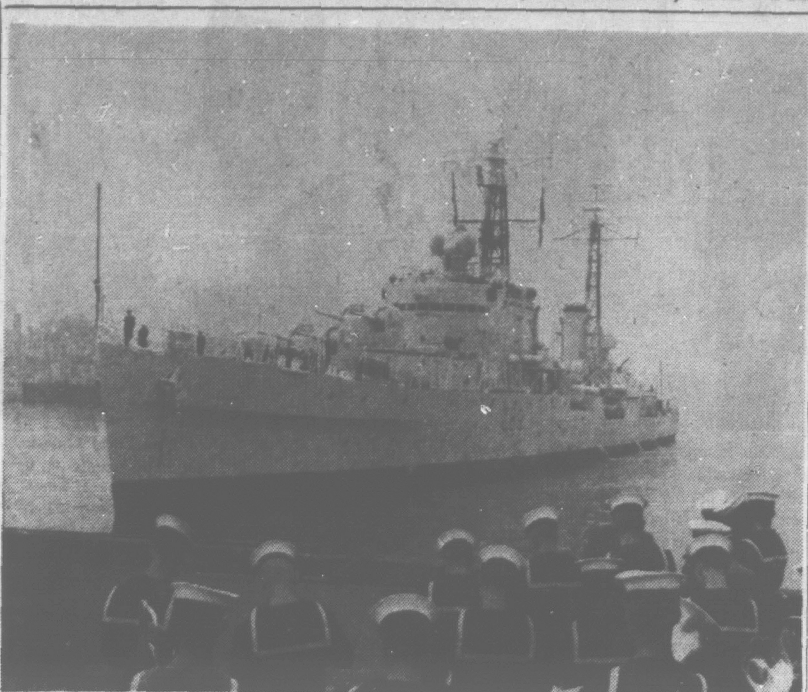

Which isn't to say that the young shouldn't dream, or that kids across the land won't go on envying the stellar glitter, the public image of Marilyn Monroe's successor, whoever she may be.

For their sakes, though, I hope none of them make it.

I think we'll step outdoors for a moment, after all. Last Sunday, working an up-island trout stream in the rain, I passed the time of day with a fisherman on the other bank. He was a patient fellow with a mild, round face. His wife, no less patient, sheltered under a yew tree with their little girl beside her. She was no Monroe, but I think the woman dead at 36 in Hollywood might have envied her.

I don't quite remember who wrote that scrap of verse I mentioned, or even whether I can quote it correctly. But here it is—Mary Queen of Scots' requiem—with a sigh for another girl born under a black star:

"About her neck did all the graces cling,
And weave such arts as did encompass death."

HMNZS ROYALIST, queen ship of New Zealand's navy, is played in to her first west coast Canadian landing by band of HMCS Naden.

NEW ZEALAND VISITORS SOMEWHAT OVERWHELMED

Beer, Gals, Goodwill, Even Rain Wizard With Down-Under Tars

By ARTHUR MAYSE

On board a handsome light cruiser alongside HMCS Naden dock today, 550 pleased if slightly bewildered officers and men of Her Majesty's Royal New Zealand Navy pondered the ways of Canadians as they prepared to repay Victoria's overwhelming hospitality.

The warship is Royalist, New Zealand's largest, and the consensus of wardroom and lower deck opinion runs this way:

Our beer is beautiful, if inclined to be gassy.

Our girls are beautiful, without qualification.

Our citizens press Commonwealth goodwill to the point of grabbing Kiwi matelots off the streets to be feted in their homes.

Our weather? Nothing wrong with it. Rather like New Zealand winter, and after all, this is more or less autumn in Canada, isn't it?

A Times' boarding party

CAPT. J. O'C. ROSS

this morning walked up Royalist's gangplank into stiff salutes and a reception that lacked only bosun's pipes and sideboys. In his day cabin, the light cruiser's commander, Capt. J. O'C. Ross, explained that this first visit by a New Zealand warship to Canada's west coast has been under discussion for 13 years.

Trained In U.K.

"We just haven't been able to get around to it before," said Capt. Ross, "but now we're here, we are enjoying ourselves immensely. I can only describe your hos-

'Congrats,' No Cash, For Quads

A provincial health official said today the government may send congratulations to the parents of Vancouver quadruplets—but financial assistance is unlikely.

Alan Becker complained Monday that he and his wife had not received even a word of recognition from the B.C. government after birth last Friday of their two boys and two girls.

"I think he has a point. We'll look into this," said the health official.

The Beckers also suggested they might be eligible for some special financial aid from the government.

"We have not usually done this. But it would be up to the welfare department," said the spokesman.

An official of the welfare department said he knew of no plans for special assistance to the Beckers.

(Standard family allowances for the four children will be $6 each or $24 per month.)

Two evaporated milk companies have offered to supply the babies with free milk for a year in exchange for using them in advertising promotion.

Victoria won the compliment to top them all today.

A note sent to City Hall by the Wilson Drury family of Everly, Iowa, raved about the city's beauty and added:

"There is only one fault I can find.

"The pretty postcards we buy to send home are not nearly as beautiful as things really are."

Smoke Control Charges Await Bylaw Ruling

Trials of five Victoria firms charged with seven violations of the city's anti-smoke bylaw were held up today pending decision on a point brought up in a test case.

Marshall Gordon, appearing in city police court as defense counsel for Moore-Whittington Lumber Co., challenged the validity of the bylaw, as being ultra-vires of the city's power under the Municipal Act.

He cited a North Vancouver case recently decided before a magistrate's court there as backing his argument.

Case was adjourned until Aug. 20 so that the North Vancouver magistrate's reasons for judgment could be set before Victoria magistrate William Ostler of Victoria.

NOT GUILTY

Mr. Gordon pleaded not guilty to the charge on the company's behalf, and city prosecutor Angus Smith introduced as evidence a certified copy of the bylaw, which Mr. Gordon had said he would attack.

He noted that the words "owners of real property, or occupiers of real property or their agents," which appear in the governing section of the municipal act, were omitted from the bylaw.

The variance was, he said, a fatal one, since "it (the bylaw) doesn't cover the same matter at all."

SOOT-BLOWING

He also said that a proviso in the bylaw, allowing the smoke inspector to authorize smoke producers to produce more than the statutory amount of smoke for reasons of repair of soot-blowing, rendered the rest of the bylaw illegal.

He cited a Supreme Court case to support this argument.

Mr. Gordon called the magistrate's attention to the North Vancouver case, and said he would furnish details of that magistrate's reasons for judgment.

NO CASE

The bylaw's illegality, he argued, meant that the prosecution had no case.

"I cannot see how the case can be disposed of just now," prosecutor Angus Smith objected.

"I took it by your silence you had no objection to Mr.

Hawaii-Style Dancing Here Tonight

Hawaii's narcissus queen, Shirley Fong, was scheduled to arrive at Patricia Bay Airport by chartered plane at 4.30 this afternoon, where she will be met by Miss Victoria, Synnove Pettersen, and Miss Canada, Nina Holden.

The queen is accompanied by her princesses Gerri Au and Clarice Ching and 40 businessmen with their wives on a goodwill tour of Canada.

This evening the queen and her princesses will take part in a parade through Chinatown from Store and Fisgard to the Chinese Public School, starting at 8 p.m. There the girls will present a sample of Hawaiian dancing.

Also taking part will be the Victoria Chinatown Lions Club Boys' Band and the local Alma Squares dance club.

The short concert will be presented in the school grounds unless poor weather forces an indoor performance.

The party will leave for Vancouver Wednesday.

AN RCN PACIFIC command officer, Lt. George Grivel, scored a perfect 100 points at Connaught Ranges, Ont., today to win the McDougall match, first of the seven Dominion of Canada Rifle Association's competitions which will decide the makeup of Canada's 1963 Blesley team. Lt. Grivel, a member of the 1961 team, is a past president of the B.C. Rifle Association.

Revised Plan For Blanshard

By JOHN MIKA

City Hall is contemplating cutting the grandiose Blanshard Street extension scheme to a more practical size.

An informed source today indicated the city engineering department may be instructed to completely replan the extension so it could be built and financed out of a normal budget next year.

The new plan would pick up Blanshard where it ends at Hillside, extend it in a curve through city-owned property west of S. J. Willis High School to connect with Rose Street.

Rose Street then would be extended northward to the city limit at Tolmie. Work already is underway which could fit into this plan.

CONGESTION

Such an extension would feed the proposed Mayfair Shopping Plaza and also provide a siphon to relieve traffic congestion at the Roundabout on Douglas. Parking on Blanshard would have to be banned as on Douglas.

It could be built quickly and cheaply without moving families and tearing down many buildings.

In contrast, city engineer James Garnett's plan throughout has been to start relocating Blanshard at the Memorial Arena and run it between the Bay Street Armoury and Holyrood House and over the present Rose Street route.

DEMOLITION

This would cost between $800,000 and $1,000,000 and would involve considerable property demolition.

Thinking behind the proposed replanning is that so much work and relocation is not justified for an ordinary city thoroughfare.

The extension as part of a provincial highway already is considered dead because of opposition from highly-placed provincial officials to a route so near Douglas.

Both plans would fit in with proposed urban renewal projects slated for the north Blanshard area and the reduced road plan would not cost as much, it was pointed out.

Plane Fails To Reach College Trio

An aircraft made three tries to pick up three university students from isolated Moat Lake today and was turned back by impenetrable overcast each time.

The trio is three days late on a specimen-gathering expedition to Moat Lake, 18 miles west of Courtenay some 1,500 feet above sea level on Forbidden Plateau.

Ray Addison, of Nanaimo, and Joan Hett, of Victoria—both Victoria College students employed for the summer as laboratory assistants—and Roseann Millin, a Victoria student working at the college as a research assistant while on vacation from McGill medical school, are in good condition with plenty of food.

They volunteered to fly in a week ago to get small animal and plant specimens for research projects of Victoria College instructors. The college did not send them.

B.C. Airlines at Campbell River said there is no general weakening in the poor weather, but further efforts to fly to Moat Lake would be made as holes appear in the fog and low cloud.

The trio is in radio contact with the airline, which says they may walk out on logging trails if necessary.

City Hall Job Sparks Paint-Up

Downtown property owners obviously have listened to the plaudits that followed repainting of City Hall.

Several buildings have been repainted to highlight architectural features and painters are now working on the Masonic Building at Douglas and Fisgard with a color scheme echoing the City Hall combination.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Fourteen hours of adventure for a nine-year-old city boy ended Monday night when city police picked him up and took him home to anxious parents.

Tommy McWhirter, gone from his home at 1330 Slater since before 8 a.m., told his parents he'd been shopping and had a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie McWhirter told city police they were worried about the lad because he had not been in good health lately.

$ 250 cheque was presented Monday by the Victoria Gyro Club to the St. Joseph's Hospital building fund.

Club president R. W. Siddall handed the cheque over to G. F. Dunn, chairman of the hospital building fund.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. How many immigrants entered Canada last year? Also, how many of the total were women and children? Mrs. L. P.

A. In 1961, 71,689 immigrants entered this country, of which number 50,337 were women and children.

Q. Has Niagara Falls really eroded and if so how far? T. N. B.

A. It is believed that the falls have moved back about seven miles in 25,000 years.

ADVANCE RETURN DATE FOR THREE FRIGATES

Three frigates of the RCN Pacific Command's Fourth Canadian Escort Squadron, at present on a training cruise in southern waters, will return to Esquimalt Wednesday, instead of Aug. 26 as originally scheduled.

The advanced arrival time is due to changes in the squadron's operational program, which is currently providing at-sea training for officer cadets.

The returning ships are HMCS Beacon Hill, Ste. Therese, and Antigone.

The other four ships in the squadron, Sussexvale, Stettler, New Glasgow and Jonquiere, will maintain the original schedule.

Bridgman, at her home on George Street; his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. D. Bridgman, Craigdarroch Road, and brother-in-law and sister Mr. and Mrs. T. Smith and family, Clover Avenue.

Spokane Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Attfield, 2724 Dufferin Avenue, have had as their guests their daughter, son-in-law and Mr. and Mrs. Ian Milne with their two children, six-year-old Martin and Linetta, 18 months. Mrs. Milne was the former Lona-Marie Attfield, who was well known for her musical and dancing talents in this city. The Milne family left Monday morning for the mainland to visit with friends before returning to their home in Spokane, Wash.

House Guests

Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Walker and their children, Patricia and Frances, are here from Halifax, visiting Mrs. Walker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin E. Watcher, at their home on Dorset Road. En route they visited Mr. Walker's mother, Mrs. E. O. Walker, in Vancouver. Also guests of Mr. and Mrs. Watcher at present are Mr. and Mrs. Russell Reynolds and Miss Ruth Miller, all of Halifax. Before returning to the Atlantic coast, the Walkers, the Reynolds and Miss Miller will go to Seattle to see the fair.

Hear Vows

Out-of-town guests at the Saturday evening wedding of Miss Carol Ann Darley to Mr. Roger William Post, which took place in St. Matthias' Anglican Church, included Cpl. and Mrs. R. Van Norman and Mr. R. K. Darley, of Qualicum Beach; Miss Marilyn Mett, New Westminster, and Mr. R. K. Darley, Anniemi, Calif.

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Gibson, 652 Kenneth Street, wish to announce the engagement of their elder daughter, Barbara Carol, to Mr. John McCartney, elder son of Mrs. John McCartney, now of London, England, and the late Mr. McCartney, of Glasgow, Scotland. The marriage will take place on Saturday, August 25, at 8 p.m., in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Victoria.

From Halifax

Mrs. G. W. C. Bissett has as her guests in her home on Senanus Drive-Saanichton, her son-in-law and daughter, Lt.

Cmdr. and Mrs. W. E. Clayard, with Brock and Jocelyn. The Clayards have been in Dartmouth, N.S., for the past four years, where Lt.-Cmdr. Clayard was naval liaison officer at the naval research establishment and latterly commanding officer of HMCS Swansea. The visitors leave shortly for Key West, Florida, where Lt.-Cmdr. Clayard will assume duties as RCN liaison officer to the USN anti-submarine test and evaluation detachment.

Double Shower

Mrs. D. Macphail and her daughter Valerie entertained in their home on Cedar Hill Road Friday evening in honor of August brides-elect, Miss Dianne Botten and Miss Elinor Jacura. Mothers of the honored guests, Mrs. A. Botten and Mrs. M. Jacura, presided at the refreshment table and were presented with corsages, as were the honor guests. Gifts were placed under decorated umbrellas. Others present were Mrs. S. Stark, Mrs. M. P. Foster, Mrs. B. Gill, Mrs. C. Noel and the Misses Merry Martin, Sharon McKay, Nelda Bradshaw, Wendy Diment, Beryl Galland, Ruth Foster, Sandra Worboys, Felicity Neave, Roberia Close, Joan McKinty, and Frankie Sinclair. Also invited were Mrs. K. McGowan, Mrs. D. Turner, Mrs. D. Morris and the Misses Ann Aylmer, Marilyn Haney, Judy Taylor, Lorraine Bell, Diana Smith and Carol Leggett.

A Party

Miss Susanne Callagline was hostess recently at a shower in her Joseph Street home in honor of August bride-elect Miss Betty Moran. A red and white carnation corsage was presented to the honor guest while her mother, Mrs. A. Moran, received pink carnations and mother of the groom-elect, Mrs. E. Barnes, yellow carnations. Guests included Mrs. M. Strouts, Mrs. L. Williams and the Misses Betty Aiken, Norah Bennett, Isabelle Couper, Dorothy Crighton, Joan Duggan, Margaret Hinks, Heather Macdonald, Mona Morley, Lucille Ouellette and Pam Thomey.

Honored

Mrs. H. B. Sargison and Mrs. G. E. Thomas entertained at the Baxter Street home of the latter with a shower in honor of Miss Mavis Gibbons, bride-elect of this month. Corsages were presented to the honor guest, to her aunt, Mrs. C. Woolford, and to the mother of the groom-elect, Mrs. R. G. Thomas. Other invited guests were Mrs. P. Mee, Mrs. D. Woolford, Mrs. J. Robichaud, wife of the Premier of New Brunswick; Mrs. Dufferin Roblin, wife of the Premier of Manitoba; Mrs. Robert L. Stanfield whose husband is Premier of Nova Scotia; Mme. Jean Lesage, wife of the Premier of Quebec; Mrs. A. F. Blakeney, whose husband, provincial secretary of Saskatchewan is representing the premier of that province.

Post-Darley Wedding on Saturday

A full-length gown of nylon chiffon over taffeta was chosen by Carol Ann Darley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth N. Darley, 58 Howe Street, for her marriage to Roger William Post, RCMP, Qualicum Beach, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Post, 351 Lansdowne Road.

White gladioli decorated St. Matthias' Anglican Church, scene of the Saturday evening ceremony, where Rev. A. E. H. Cameron of Lundavra officiated. Dr. J. V. Bateman was organist.

Bride's gown featured a sweetheart neckline and a band of seed pearls and rhinestones at top of bodice. Elbow-length sleeves were gathered nylon chiffon. The skirt, half trapeze style above the hem, was slightly on train. A crown of pearls and nylon chiffon buds field the chapel-length veil, and her jewelry was a pearl pendant and earrings. She carried a bouquet of red roses. Mr. Darley gave his daughter in marriage.

Maid of honor, Miss Lynn Darley, sister of the bride, and Mrs. John P. Roberts, wife of the Premier of Ontario. Inset, lower left, is Mrs. Bennett, who was unable to be present as dinner hostess Monday evening, because of illness. The group is in Victoria to attend the third provincial premiers' conference. Today the visitors were entertained by Premier Bennett and members of the executive council at luncheon in the wardroom in HMCS Naden. On Wednesday the visitors go to Kelowna to attend the annual regatta there. (Photo by Peter Chapman.)

DEAR ABBY . . .

Don't Be Foolish!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: On Mother's Day I got a potted plant from one of my children, I think! Anyway, it came from a local florist with a card which read, "From the . . . family." I am sure it came from one of my sons, who lives about 300 miles away. I am real angry about it. I think they should have at least signed their given names. My daughter here in town says I am being silly. Of course, I could have called the florist and found out where it came from, but I was too hurt. What do you think about it?

MRS. STILL ANGRY. DEAR MRS. STILL: You are turning a simple potted plant into a jungle of trouble. Many mothers were forgotten entirely on Mother's Day. Be glad you weren't one of them.

DEAR ABBY: I read somewhere that a hostess should be complimented if a guest picks up her china or silverware to admire it and see what company made it. We were at a dinner party last night and I picked up a plate and turned it over to examine it more closely and everyone looked shocked. I don't want to embarrass myself again. Did I do something wrong or not?

LOVES NICE THINGS. DEAR LOVES: If a guest admires china or silver and wants to know the pattern and manufacturer, she should ask her hostess. It is improper to examine it for trademarks.

DEAR ABBY: I am an ex-sailor, married a year. We are both 31 and Abby, can you believe it, I am trying to teach my wife how to wash dishes. She never rinses the soap off dishes or glasses. She says you don't have to go to all that trouble because the dish towel does that. I never eat at her mother's because I don't like soapy tea. Can a dish towel remove soap? Please put your answer in the paper. She won't believe me.

EX-SAILOR. DEAR EX-SAILOR: You don't have to join the navy to know how important water is. A dish towel will not remove soap residue. Rinsing is necessary. People have become violently ill from unrinsed dishes and glassware.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

While You Take a Dip, Baby Can Splash, Too

By Penny Saver

What do you do, Mom, when you want to get in the water for a dip, but there's no one around to look after the baby? You could perhaps put the baby in a play pen while you enjoy your swim. But if you're an enlightened, imaginative and a loving mother (and one who reads Penny), you will rush out and buy a safety water seat and play table priced at $5.95, which is designed to let baby have a "dip" as well.

Like a table top with a hole in it, device is made of polyethylene foam and is said to have 100 per cent flotation. Baby is placed in strap seat in hole in middle of two-foot square board. And there he can dabble his feet and splash as much as he likes.

Older children will have fun with water bar bells—a stick with two bulbs of this foam material on either end. They can float easily with it under their chin, or behind their head, try to stand on it—any number of things. Toy is just $1.95.

Life rings of this material are also available for 89 cents. They will work much the same as an inner tube for the children—and they come in various colors.

Sale in sport shop Penny visited makes now the time to get a life jacket, too. Conventional over the shoulder jackets, they tie around the waist with a strong cotton strap. Regular prices in $5.60 to $5.95 range have been cut to sale prices which vary from $3.96 to $4.95.

The same store has baseball gloves on sale, too. All the regular stock of gloves priced from $4.50 to $18.95 are on sale for 20 per cent off the regular price.

Call Penny at 382-3131 if items interest you.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

She Did It, They Did It, You Can Do It—Let's Do It

Here's a zippy letter from a zippy marathon winner. In case any of my readers do not know, I run my eight-week self-improvement marathon each January. Every year tens of thousands of women join to see how much they can improve their appearance in eight weeks' time under my direction. Many of them wish to lose 15 to 20 pounds in that time and do so. Each August I print a few letters which have come from them.

Here is today's letter:

"Dear Mrs. Lowman: I feel like dancing and singing all day long! I am different. My husband is different. My children are different. The whole world is different — since I lost 20 pounds.

"I am 35 years old. For the past 10 years I have been gaining weight steadily. I have been 20 pounds overweight for the last three years. I know that the reason everything is different is because I am different. I feel attractive again.

"I had not realized how much that overweight was affecting my life. I was tired and irritable and self-conscious because of it. Naturally, this affected my relationship with my family and my friends.

"It also affected my activities. I gave up dancing and swimming and lost interest in my clothes and hairdo. Was I in a rut? I will never let it happen again, never, never! I would not have waited this long had I known I could accomplish that much in eight weeks."

Well, I can't add anything to that. As my readers know, I have an abiding belief that our appearance affects our outlook, personality and enjoyment of life and that we are apt to live up to the picture we have of ourselves. Also, overweight can impose the terrific penalties of chronic fatigue and poor health.

If you would like to get your figure fit to have a fit in your fall outfit, you may want to follow the plan this woman used. If so, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for my marathon booklet. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Pressure-sealed plate in Victoria Public Library front door has shattered under the strain of unseasonable weather.

Sunday morning a policeman discovered the glass on the Blanshard Street entrance completely shattered but with the fragments still intact in the frame.

Chief librarian J. C. said today it was the worst such incident.

"I don't think it was a trying to break in," said Mr. Lort. "We believe it must have been a change of temperature that caused the breakage."

Mr. Lort said it was a

World Map Parley
BONN (AP)—A United Nations conference attended by experts from 50 countries opened here Monday to produce a basic world map incorporating latest information and techniques. The conference, to last 2½ weeks, is the first under UN auspices to be held in West Germany. It is being boycotted by Communist-bloc countries. The last world map conference took place in Paris in 1953.

The Victoria postal authorities had threatened to destroy them, but the Victoria postal authorities received the lizards Thursday, and forwarded them to Ottawa with a recommendation that they be destroyed because the ship violated postal regulations. Dunbar, zoo operator, stated, to whom the ship was addressed, advised the postal authorities that the turtles were not replaceable. Post office authorities accepted and forwarded the turtles to the zoo.

AA (Oscar Class) BB (Worthwhile) B (For Rainy Days) A (Don't Miss) C (To Put in Time)

(OSCAR CLASS) "JUDGMENT AT NUREMBERG"
(Odeon): For the thinking, United Artists' "Judgment at Nuremberg" could be classified as the outstanding motion picture of the year.

The subject is old—the trial of Nazi war criminals—but Abby Mann's screenplay about an incorruptible American judge sitting in judgment against defendants, who were themselves judges under the Hitler regime, lends an aura of newness about it all.

What is more, the acting and characterizations are strong and piercing. And after watching his performance in the three-hour-and-nine-minute production (there is an intermission) there is little wonder that Maximilian Schell, as the defence counsel, won the coveted "best actor" award.

Yet one man cannot make such a production as "Judgment at Nuremberg" a success. Schell had plenty of help. There was Judy Garland, looking and acting quite unlike the normal Garland.

MAXIMILIAN SCHELL... deserved Oscar

Burt Lancaster as a German judge was almost unrecognizable at the beginning—especially if one remembered him last as the flamboyant Elmer Gantry. Nor should one forget Richard Widmark as lawyer for the prosecution.

Then there was Marlene Dietrich, Montgomery Clift and that veteran who grows in stature with the years, Spencer Tracy, as the judge from Maine who headed the tribunal of three. Stanley Kramer's direction was masterful.

There are bound to be some in the audience who will think the script wordy and it is. But who who are will not be weary with them and concentrate will wind up learning a great deal about humanity, the responsibility of the individual, the responsibility of nations and, in the end, of man to his fellow man.

Canada to Ease Surtax on Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Canada has promised to ease or abolish as soon as possible import surtaxes introduced June 24, the Japanese foreign ministry announced today.

It said the promise was made during Japan-Canada trade talks here which ended Monday.

The talks started July 31 between J. F. Grandy of Canada's finance department and Yasuhiro Nara, chief of the America-Canada section of the economic affairs bureau of the Japanese foreign ministry.

The Japanese expressed "grave concern" over the effect Canadian import surtaxes imposed today.

The foreign ministry said the two sides agreed Japan will restrict her exports of flatware to 720,000 dozen. Last year Japan exported 712,000 dozen.

As to radio tubes, Canada agreed not to put a ceiling on the Japanese exports of the item in view of the recent stable shipment, the ministry said. Japan exported 115,712 radio tubes to Canada last year while the January-June figure this year was 37,321.

PROPOSED TEXTILE PACT
The foreign ministry said Japan proposed a five-year trade pact on cotton products with Canada in line with the international long-term textile agreement worked out earlier this year in Geneva.

The Japanese proposal calls for at least a 15-per-cent export increase during the coming five years, the ministry said. Japan exported $7,800,000 worth of cotton products to Canada last year.

It added that the Canadians promised to answer the Japanese proposal as soon as possible.

PORT ALBERNI — Autopsy has been ordered on a 22-year-old German seaman found dead in his bunk aboard a Norwegian freighter here Monday.

Hans Joachim Korbel, a crew member of the Norwegian freighter Roland, was found dead aboard the ship which was tied up at Somass Division dock to load lumber.

V.I. ROUNDUP

Garbage Dump To Seaside Park Plan in Sidney

SIDNEY—A four-acre tract originally bought by Sidney village for a garbage dump will be transformed into a sea-front park complete with picnic facilities, children's playground and "portable" boat launching ramps.

Location of the proposed park, on which the village has already spent $3,000 on fill, is south of the new Ana-cortes ferry terminal between Fifth Street and the sea.

Total cost over a five to 10-year period is expected to be upwards of $20,000.

"It's all in the tentative stage still," A. W. Sharp, Sidney municipal clerk, said today. "Since we won't receive a government grant, work will have to be done out of taxes. We've already turned what used to be swampland into solid ground, and this fall we expect to plant the area with rye grass."

Owing to southeast gales that beat the exposed shoreline in winter, boat ramps would be of the removable type.

Provincial recreation and conservation department has agreed to help plan the park.

NORTH COWICHAN — Building permits for the first seven months of 1962 total $1,026,189, more than $300,000 higher than the same period a year ago.

July permits came to $640,181, a whopping stride over July, 1961, when there were permits with a value of $55,557 issued.

A year ago, the seven-month total was $710,521.

NANAIMO — Boys and girls aged 12 to 18 will be eligible for new branches of Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps.

Organization of a Navy League Cadet Corps, for boys 12-14, and a Navy League Wrenette Corps, for girls 14-18, starts in September.

DUNCAN — An hour-long parade is the target of Junior Chamber of Commerce to open the city's 50th birthday celebrations and Cowichan fall fair next month.

The club wants 100 entries, with special emphasis on Indian and other ethnic groups. There have been 55 entries so far.

PORT ALBERNI — Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2.30 p.m. for Alvin Maurice McLeod.

He died in a head-on collision Friday on the Trans-Canada Highway near Ladysmith.

A construction electrician in the pulp mill here, he lived at the Sunset Motel with his wife Doris and sons Lanny and Gary.

Also surviving are nine brothers and two sisters. Service in Stevens Funeral Chapel will be conducted by Rev. J. D. Verberk. Cremation will follow.

Husband Charged With Gunning Down Wife

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ray Ballash, 26, was charged Monday night with capital murder in the shooting death of his attractive redheaded wife outside their home here.

Police said Mrs. Shirley I. Ballash, 22, was hit in the head by a blast from a .30-calibre hunting rifle, fired from only six feet away.

George Pappas, a taxi driver who had just taken Mrs. Ballash to her home, said he shouted to the gunman: "You're mad. You've killed her you fool!"

The woman's three-year-old daughter, Lisa, was staying at her grandparents at the time of the shooting. Pappas said he was told to wait. "Suddenly I saw her backing out from the house. A tall man with a rifle was talking to her as she was backing out. 'I heard her tell him: 'Take it easy... Don't do it...'"

Pappas said the man told Mrs. Ballash to pay the cab fare. She turned and walked toward the taxi. "I saw him raise the rifle and take careful aim and I shouted to him: 'Don't shoot. You'll be sorry.'"

"Then there was a blast and I saw her collapse before me." Pappas said he radioed his dispatcher to call police. He saw the gunman walk into the house, leave the rifle inside and walk outside again "with his hands in his pocket."

... even before the policeman walked up to him he had raised his hands up." Police cordoned off part of the street to clean up the gore. The still were hosing down the sidewalk more than 1½ hours after the shooting.

44 Charged In Goofball Crackdown

VANCOUVER (CP)—RCMP and city police drug squads today arrested 22 persons and held warrants for 22 more on charges of trafficking in narcotics and goofballs.

The arrests resulted from several months of undercover work by RCMP Const. G. C. Hunt, police said.

Most of the suspects were arrested in the city's east end in a co-ordinated series of raids.

Staff Sgt. J. H. Nelson, chief of the RCMP drug squad in Vancouver, said 25 persons were charged with trafficking in narcotics and 17 others with trafficking in goofballs, a slang term used to describe sedatives or stimulants taken as a substitute for narcotics.

Police said the roundup marks the first major crackdown on goofball trafficking in Canada. Sale of goofballs was recently brought under control of the federal Food and Drug Act.

Vancouver coroner Glen McDonald said last week 18 deaths have been attributed to the use of goofballs in the first half of 1962.

It was the second large scale roundup connected with the illicit narcotics trade in Vancouver this year.

Most of 31 men and women arrested last January have since been sent to prison. Police said the arrests broke up the biggest drug syndicate ever to operate in Western Canada.

The crackdown resulted in a shortage of narcotics for the estimated 2,000 addicts in Vancouver, about half the estimated number of addicts in Canada.

Police said the shortage forced the price of heroin, normally $5 a capsule in the underworld, to as high as $22. It also stepped up the use of goofballs.

Coroner McDonald said nine of the deaths blamed on goofballs resulted from straight overdoses, eight were overdoses of barbiturates and alcohol and one from a mixture of barbiturates and morphine.

Last week, two Vancouver Sun reporters wrote that they could purchase goofballs as easily as a bag of candy during the two days they spent mixing with drug addicts in the city's east end.

They said they made a dozen separate purchases for a total of 60 goofballs at prices ranging from 35 cents for one capsule to $5 for a dozen.

Oak Bay Buys B.C. Bonds

Oak Bay has followed Victoria in plans to buy a quarter-million dollars' worth of B.C. parity bonds.

Victoria council has authorized $300,000 worth of bonds to be purchased out of tax receipts.

Oak Bay's $250,000 would be bought the same way, on a short-term basis, the bonds to be converted later in the year as the need for funds arise.

Oak Bay is buying B.C. Toll Bridges and Highway Authority bonds, yielding 5 1/2 per cent.

Propane Blast Threat Renewed

MAPLE, Ont. (CP)—Engineers were risking their lives today attempting to prevent a new blast at an explosion-wrecked $200,000 propane gas plant.

They were spraying water on a burning truck—an experiment to see whether a similar technique can be used on a 30,000-gallon tank which is still blazing and threatening the neighborhood with another explosion.

The dangerous experiment is being carried on in the shadow of the huge tank at the Superior Propane Company, more than 48 hours after a series of blasts occurred.

One man was killed when the storage tanks went up. Three other men were injured. It was feared that unless escaping gas can be controlled, the 30,000-gallon tank will explode with the most severe blast so far.

The engineers are exploring the theory that water will cool the tank and speed the rate at which the gas escapes.

Risk of a new explosion arose early today when two of four geysers of flame on the huge tank went out—extinguished by heavy rain. Police said that if all four flames went out before sufficient gas was burned up a new blast would be almost inevitable.

By dawn today a total of 26 families had been evacuated. Some were given shelter in private homes in this village of 1,100 just north of Toronto.

COLWOOD

Aged Man Loses Life In Fire

By LES MILLIN

An elderly man died early today in a fire that gutted his cabin at a Colwood motel.

Dead is John Mathews, 80.

Twenty firemen of the Colwood volunteer department, called at 4 a.m., fought the blaze for an hour.

Before they could subdue it, heat had charred the interior of the cabin, blown the glass out of the windows and demolished the furniture in the small room.

Paint on the outside walls was blistered off, and only the shell of the building still stands.

NO EXPLANATION

No official explanation of the fire was available, but firemen said the cabin's stove was turned off and could not have started the blaze.

Mr. Mathews was known to smoke a pipe.

A neighbor in an adjoining cabin gave the alarm.

His body was found on the floor by firemen who broke the door down to release smoke after intense heat inside the frame building blew glass from the windows.

SON ABSENT

A son, Charles, lived with Mr. Mathews but was away from the cabin Monday night, staying with a sister who lives in a trailer park nearby.

Although crippled—the victim was wounded in the First World War—he was able to get about quite well, relatives said.

Mr. Mathews had taken off the brace he usually wore on his left leg, and was evidently sitting in an easy chair near the stove when the fire began.

Physically slight, Mr. Mathews was a veteran of both the Boer War and the First World War.

He had been a widower for 16 years.

Mr. Mathews had another daughter here, Mrs. D. B. Ferguson, 413 Forward Drive.

Deputy coroner Edmond Jorrie de St. Jorre said a coroner's inquiry will be held into the death.

Premiers Talk Finance Issues

By FRANK RUTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Canadian premiers Monday debated the whole field of provincial bond issues and came up with some ground rules for better financing.

One new move will be a secret pipeline to tip each other off on upcoming borrowing plans.

Aim would be to avoid clashes in timing, so that each province could obtain the best available market for securities.

"It would be done through the syndicates which usually market the bonds," said Quebec Premier Jean Lesage, chairman of the conference of premiers which today started its second series of sessions at the Legislative Buildings here.

Mr. Lesage said provincial borrowing occupied an hour of Monday's one and one-half hour meeting, and went far beyond agenda plans.

The premiers thrashed out various ways of raising money and ended with some ideas on the pitfalls and precautions experienced by B.C., Manitoba and Saskatchewan in parity bond and savings certificate plans.

CONCLUSIONS

The conclusions, according to Mr. Lesage were:

1. Wide distribution of such securities is necessary to avoid a sudden rush to cash them in if interest rates go up;
2. Limits on the amount held by individuals and corporations are a good idea, also to avoid heavy cashing in;
3. An exchange of information on upcoming issues would help all provinces planning and marketing issues.

"I believe all of us came out of the discussion with a better knowledge of what can be done and how to improve existing systems," said Mr. Lesage.

He said B.C. delegates Premier Bennett and Attorney-General.

'No Evidence Of Conspiracy'

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—A magistrate today refused to commit 70 elders of the Sons of Freedom doukhobor sect on conspiracy charges.

Magistrate William Evans said there was not enough evidence for him to order higher court trial on the charges of conspiring to intimidate the governments of Canada and British Columbia with acts of violence.

His ruling ended a 38-day preliminary hearing into the charges which came after RCMP officers arrested the members of the Freedomite's fraternal council in a series of surprise raids at several shack-towns in the B.C. Kootenays.

Magistrate Evans said in his judgment witnesses and scores of documents produced by the Crown contained little to indicate that the accused had formed a conspiracy.

All but six of the men charged were to be set free later today. The six are in custody on other charges.

LEADERS CHARGED

Stefan Sorokin, spiritual leader of the Freedomites, and other sect leaders, both in Uruguay, were also charged with the conspiracy when the 70 were rounded up March 25.

Police said at the time Stefan and his aide would be arrested on the charges if they returned to Canada.

During the preliminary hearing Freedomite women in the Kootenays burned more than 200 of their homes and staged several nude demonstrations in protest against arrest of the leaders.

Police believed most of the incidents were in protest against the hearing.

At the opening of the hearing Crown prosecutor T. G. Bowen-Colthurst said it was the first time in Canadian history that the charge of intimidating Parliament has been involved.

The charge carries a maximum penalty of 14 years imprisonment.

HEARING COST $100,000

Court officials estimated the hearing cost $100,000.

The March 25 arrests were one of a series of RCMP widespread bombings and arson in southeastern B.C. in recent years.

Last spring, a 600-foot hydro transmission tower was toppled by a Freedomite bomb, throwing several hundred mining and Kootenay smelting workers out of work for several weeks while power facilities were restored.

In a lengthy series of Supreme Court trials at Nelson, B.C., earlier this year, 95 Freedomite terrorists received jail terms totalling 1,010 years.

Joe Podovinkoff, one of the 70 accused who acted as their spokesman and interpreter during the hearing, said Magistrate Evans' decision would encourage Freedomites to cooperate with authorities to stamp out terrorism.

Centennial Flashback...

THIS DAY IN VICTORIA - 1862

AUGUST 7
Police and a boat's crew from the gunboat Forward boarded the ship Lady Young in the Outer Harbor, and searched her from stem to stern, seeking possible deserters from the Royal Navy. If any were aboard, they were too well hidden to be discovered. The Lady Young is bound for the Sandwich Islands.

William W. Gibbs, the colored grocer on Yates Street, presented himself today as a candidate for councillor.

The smallpox has reached the Sooke Indians, Charlton, the big chief, is dead, and several others very ill.

MUST DIE

What was apparently the last hope to save the life of Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan, sentenced to death for her part in the murder of her Canadian-born daughter-in-law vanished today when U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Justice denied a stay of execution.

Mrs. Duncan is scheduled to be executed in the gas chamber at San Quentin Wednesday. Her lawyer says he plans a further appeal tonight.

REASON FOR STAR'S DEATH STILL A MYSTERY

Marilyn's Last Phone Call Probed

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A mysterious phone call in the night shortly before Marilyn Monroe was found dead added still further conjecture today to the tragedy that befell the blonde movie queen.

There also remained the question of whether she died intentionally or accidentally.

"I don't remember what time the call came in," said the actress' housekeeper, Mrs. Eunice Murray Monday. "And I don't know who it was from."

"But knowing Marilyn as I do, I think that if this call woke her up, she might have taken some more sleeping pills."

Coroner Theodore J. Curphey said the death Saturday of the actress was caused by a massive overdose of barbiturates.

Mrs. Murray added that the unidentified call might account for the phone's being found clutched in the hand of the sometimes bright and gay, sometimes depressed star.

ARRANGE FUNERAL

Meanwhile, arrangements were being completed for quiet funeral services and burial Wednesday. Friends were hoping the simple rites would not attract throngs of the curious.

Details were not set, but a funeral home spokesman said only 15 persons were invited to the service for the 36-year-old Miss Monroe.

"There will be just persons close to Marilyn, no movie people," said a spokesman.

The actress will be placed in a mausoleum crypt near the grave of a woman believed to have befriended her early in life.

The headstone identifies Grace Goddard, who died in 1953 and whose burial arrangements were made by Marilyn herself.

The woman is believed to be the former Grace McKee, who took Marilyn in as a child when

MANY TRIES

NEW YORK (UPI)—Marilyn Monroe attempted suicide several times in her life, friends disclosed today.

Producer Ben Hecht said Marilyn told him in California in 1954 that she tried to take her life twice before she was 19. Other friends here said she had dangerous bouts with sleeping pills in more recent years.

"When she told me of the suicide attempts in 1954, she was leaving her unhappy early life behind."

"She had 10 wonderful years. Then Hollywood failed her."

VICTORIA, B.C., TUESDAY, AUGUST 7, 1962—PAGE 11

ARTHUR MAYSE

We go outdoors most Tuesdays, but today I find myself nagged at by a tag of Elizabethan verse and a remembered picture. The picture, crux of an exceptionally sensitive Hollywood film called "The Misfits," shows a woman protesting in a fit of hysteria man's brutality to a wild horse.

Doll-sized against the immensity of a desert flat, the woman stamps and shrieks her agony of spirit to a sky in which no pity sits. Out of context, her antics would be ludicrous. But as they proceed through frenzy to exhaustion, the viewer recognizes a deeper rebellion—the lashing-out of one small and futile human against life itself.

The scene isn't high art, and the actress who played it—in a script written by one of her ex-husbands—fell short of greatness. But to my mind it epitomizes the Marilyn Monroe story better than any spate of words could do.

On Sunday, as even the Russians must know by this time, the girl who after three marriages and two miscarriages we still call Miss Monroe pressed her protest against life to the ultimate conclusion. If she left written reasons to explain her suicide, they have not yet been revealed.

Perhaps her own quoted words, "It might be kind of a relief to be finished," offer the most tangible clue.

Her life was hard. Born out of wedlock to a mother who has reported spent a good deal of her time in mental institutions, she was shunted from one foster home to the next as Norma Jean Baker. She married appallingly young but found no escape in marriage, although had her luck been better she might have enjoyed comfortable anonymity as an aircraft worker's wife.

Instead, by reason of a fair face and an arresting set of measurements, she had the horrible misfortune to achieve her dearest dream. She became a Hollywood star, and the sex symbol of her generation. The world she had yearned for then proceeded to destroy her.

I don't know that world as an insider, but I've glimpsed

it from its peripheries on occasion, and want no part of it. It does curious and disturbing things to people.

Certain of my friends have invaded it, one or two with spectacular success. They aren't happy people, by my standards or theirs. They don't sleep well, they take their martinis dryer than is good for a person, and most of them have changed partners at least once. I can't unwind them, and doubt that even their analysts can.

The world that claimed them, and killed poor little Norma Jean Baker, is as unreal as any other product of Madison Avenue. I think my world, and probably yours, are very much better places.

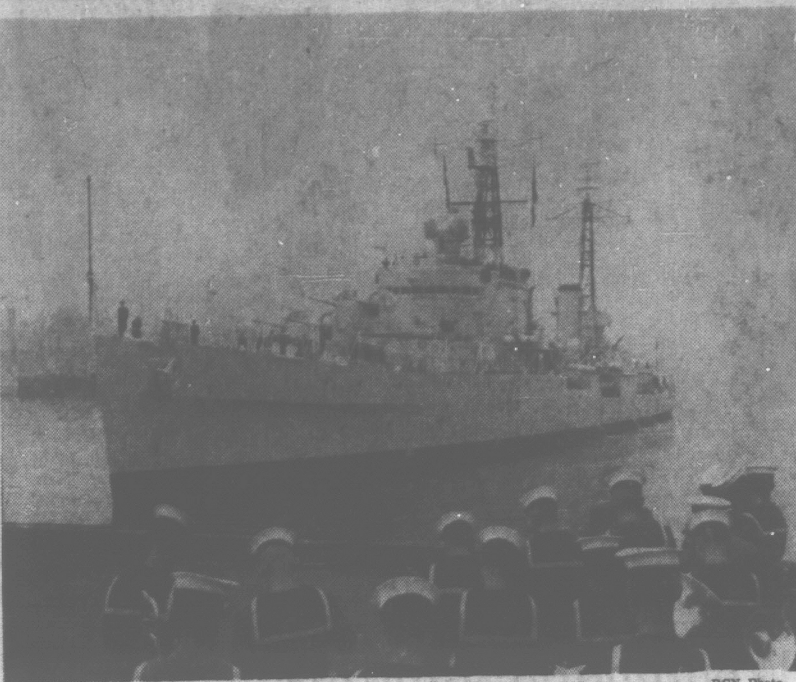

Which isn't to say that the young shouldn't dream, or that kids across the land won't go on envying the stellar glitter, the public image of Marilyn Monroe's successor, whoever she may be.

For their sakes, though, I hope none of them make it.

I think we'll step outdoors for a moment, after all. Last Sunday, working an up-island trout stream in the rain, I passed the time of day with a fisherman on the other bank. He was a patient fellow with a mild, round face. His wife, no less patient, sheltered under a yew tree with their little girl beside her. She was no Monroe, but I think the woman dead at 36 in Hollywood might have envied her.

I don't quite remember who wrote that scrap of verse I mentioned, or even whether I can quote it correctly. But here it is—Mary Queen of Scots' requiem—with a sigh for another girl born under a black star:

"About her neck did all the graces cling,
And wease such arts as did encompass death."

HMNZS ROYALIST, queen ship of her first west coast Canadian landing by band of HMCS Naden.

NEW ZEALAND VISITORS SOMEWHAT OVERWHELMED

Beer, Gals, Goodwill, Even Rain Wizard With Down-Under Tars

By ARTHUR MAYSE

On board a handsome light cruiser alongside HMCS Naden dock today, 550 pleased if slightly bewildered officers and men of Her Majesty's Royal New Zealand Navy pondered the ways of Canadians as they prepared to repay Victoria's overwhelming hospitality.

The warship is Royalist, New Zealand's largest, and the consensus of wardroom and lower deck opinion runs this way:

Our beer is beautiful, if inclined to be gassy.

Our girls are beautiful, without qualification.

Our citizens press Commonwealth goodwill to the point of grabbing Kiwi matelots off the streets to be feted in their homes.

Our weather? Nothing wrong with it. Rather like New Zealand, winter, and after all, this is more or less autumn in Canada, isn't it?

A Times' boarding party

CAPT. J. O'C. ROSS
... he likes our accent

this morning walked up, I can only describe your host-Royalist's gangplank into stiff salutes and a reception that lacked only bosun's pipes and sideboys. In his day cabin, the light cruiser's commander, Capt. J. O'C. Ross, explained that this first visit by a New Zealand warship to Canada's west coast has been under discussion for 13 years.

Trained In U.K.

"We just haven't been able to get around to it before," said Capt. Ross, "but now we're here, we are enjoying ourselves immensely."

'Congrats,' No Cash, For Quads

A provincial health official said today the government may send congratulations to the parents of Vancouver quadruplets—but financial assistance is unlikely.

Alan Becker complained Monday that he and his wife had not received even a word of recognition from the B.C. government after birth last Friday of their two boys and two girls.

"I think he has a point. We'll look into this," said the health official.

The Beckers also suggested they might be eligible for some special financial aid from the government.

"We have not usually done this. But it would be up to the welfare department," said the spokesman.

An official of the welfare department said he knew of no plans for special assistance to the Beckers.

(Standard family allowances for the four children will be $6 each or $24 per month.)

Two evaporated milk companies have offered to supply the babies with free milk for a year in exchange for using them in advertising promotion.

Victoria won the compliment to top them all today.

A note sent to City Hall by the Wilson Drury family of Every, Iowa, raved about the city's beauty and added:

"There is only one fault I can find.

"The pretty postcards we buy to send home are not nearly as beautiful as things really are."

Smoke Control Charges Await Bylaw Ruling

Trials of five Victoria firms charged with seven violations of the city's anti-smoke bylaw were held up today pending decision on a point brought up in a test case.

Marsh Gordon, appearing in city police court as defense counsel for Moore-Whittington Lumber Co., challenged the validity of the bylaw, as being ultra-vires of the city's power under the Municipal Act.

He cited a North Vancouver case recently decided before a magistrate's court there as backing his argument.

Case was adjourned until Aug. 20 so that the North Vancouver magistrate's reasons for judgment could be set before Victoria magistrate William Ostler of Victoria.

NOT GUILTY

Mr. Gordon pleaded not guilty to the charge on the company's behalf, and city prosecutor Angus Smith introduced as evidence a certified copy of the bylaw, which Mr. Gordon had said he would attack.

He noted that the words "owners of real property, or occupiers of real property or their agents," which appear in the governing section of the municipal act, were omitted from the bylaw.

The variance was, he said, a fatal one, since "it (the bylaw) doesn't cover the same matter at all."

SOOT-BLOWING

He also said that a proviso in the bylaw, allowing the smoke inspector to authorize smoke producers to produce more than the statutory amount of smoke for reasons of repair or soot-blowing, rendered the rest of the bylaw illegal.

He cited a Supreme Court case to support this argument.

Mr. Gordon called the magistrate's attention to the North Vancouver case, and said he would furnish details of that magistrate's reasons for judgment.

NO CASE

The bylaw's illegality, he argued, meant that the prosecution had no case.

"I cannot see how the case can be disposed of just now," prosecutor Angus Smith objected.

"I took it by your silence you had no objection to Mr.

Gordon's course of action," the magistrate told him.

Courts are not set up to defeat bylaws at every opportunity, but to defeat them when necessary, Mr. Smith said in answer to the defence argument.

INTERPRETATION

"If a benevolent interpretation of the bylaw is necessary to give it force, it should be given," he said.

"The bylaw should be supported in so far as it can be ...

"I submit, your honor, that where there's smoke, there's fire."

Mr. Smith told the court that the form of the bylaw was common.

"I don't know where it originated, but the form is copied in many places," he told the court.

"You disclaim responsibility, then?" Magistrate Ostler asked him.

The case was adjourned at this point.

AN RCN PACIFIC command officer, Lt. George Grivel, scored a perfect 100 points at Connaught Ranges, Ont., today to win the McDougall match, first of the seven Dominion of Canada Rifle Association's competitions which will decide the makeup of Canada's 1963 Blesley team. Lt. Grivel, a member of the 1961 team, is a past president of the B.C. Rifle Association.

Revised Plan For Blanshard

By JOHN MIKA

City Hall is contemplating cutting the grandiose Blanshard Street extension scheme to a more practical size.

An informed source today indicated the city engineering department may be instructed to completely replan the extension so it could be built and financed out of a normal budget next year.

The new plan would pick up Blanshard where it ends at Hillside, extend it in a curve through city-owned property west of S. J. Willis High School to connect with Rose Street.

Rose Street then would be extended northward to the city limit at Tolmie. Work already is underway which could fit into this plan.

CONGESTION

Such an extension would feed the proposed Mayfair Shopping Plaza and also provide a siphon to relieve traffic congestion at the Roundabout on Douglas. Parking on Blanshard would have to be banned as on Douglas.

It could be built quickly and cheaply without moving families and tearing down many buildings.

In contrast, city engineer James Garnett's plan throughout has been to start relocating Blanshard at the Memorial Arena and run it between the Bay Street Armory and Holyrood House and over the present Rose Street route.

DEMOLITION

This would cost between $800,000 and $1,000,000 and would involve considerable property demolition.

Thinking behind the proposed replanning is that so much work and relocation is not justified for an ordinary city thoroughfare.

The extension as part of a provincial highway already is considered dead because of opposition from highly-placed provincial officials to a route so near Douglas.

Both plans would fit in with proposed urban renewal projects slated for the north Blanshard area and the reduced road plan would not cost as much, it was pointed out.

Plane Fails To Reach College Trio

An aircraft made three tries to pick up three university students from isolated Moat Lake today and was turned back by impenetrable overcast each time.

The trio is three days late on a specimen-gathering expedition to Moat Lake, 18 miles west of Courtenay some 1,500 feet above sea level on Forbidden Plateau.

Ray Addison, of Nanaimo, and Joan Hett, of Victoria—both Victoria College students employed for the summer as laboratory assistants—and Roseann Millin, a Victoria student working at the college as a research assistant while on vacation from McGill medical school, are in good condition with plenty of food.

They volunteered to fly in a week ago to get small animal and plant specimens for research projects of Victoria College instructors. The college did not send them.

B.C. Airlines at Campbell River said there is no general weakening in the poor weather, but further efforts to fly to Moat Lake would be made as hopes appear in the fog and low clouds.

The trio is in radio contact with the airline, which says they may walk out on logging trails if necessary.

City Hall Job Sparks Paint-Up

Downtown property owners obviously have listened to the plaudits that followed repainting of City Hall.

Several buildings have been repainted to highlight architectural features and painters are now working on the Masonic Building at Douglas and Fisgard with a color scheme echoing the City Hall combination.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Fourteen hours of adventure for a nine-year-old city boy ended Monday night when city police picked him up and took him home to anxious parents.

Tommy McWhirter, gone from his home at 1330 Slater since before 8 a.m., told his parents he'd been shopping and had a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie McWhirter told city police they were worried about the lad because he had not been in good health lately.

$ 250 cheque was presented Monday by the Victoria Gyrto Club to the St. Joseph's Hospital building fund.

Club president R. W. Siddall handed the cheque over to G. F. Dunn, chairman of the hospital building fund.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. How many immigrants entered Canada last year. Also, how many of the total were women and children? Mrs. L. P.

A. In 1961, 71,689 immigrants entered this country, of which number 39,357 were women and children.

Q. Has Niagara Falls really eroded and if so how far? T. N. B.

A. It is believed that the falls have moved back about seven miles in 25,000 years.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

ADVANCE RETURN DATE FOR THREE FRIGATES

Three frigates of the RCN Pacific Command's Fourth Canadian Escort Squadron, at present on a training cruise in southern waters, will return to Esquimalt Wednesday, instead of Aug. 26 as originally scheduled.

The advanced arrival time is due to changes in the squadron's operational program, which is currently providing at-sea training for officer cadets.

The returning ships are HMCS Beacon Hill, Ste. Therese, and Antigoni.

The other four ships in the squadron, Sussexvale, Stettler, New Glasgow and Jonquiere, will maintain the original schedule.

OTTAWA (CP)—An initial payment of $1.50 a bushel for western wheat in the 1962-63 crop year—the first increase in this payment at the outset of a crop year since 1949-50—was announced today by Agricultural Minister Alvin Hamilton.

Psychiatric Probe in Slaying

VANCOUVER (CP)—A psychiatric report was ordered in police court here today for Raymond Alex Ballash, charged with the murder of his pregnant wife. Ballash, 26, a B.C. Telephone draftsman was charged with capital murder after his wife, Shirley, 22, was killed by a shot from a rifle outside the Ballash home here Monday.

Friend of Marilyn Found Dead

LONDON (Reuters)—British actress Patricia Marlowe, 28, was found dead today in her London home. She was reported to have been upset by the death of actress Marilyn Monroe in Hollywood. The two were said to be good friends.

She was found dead in bed with her baby son crying in the nursery.

Police took possession of two notes and some empty bottles.

World-Famed Track Coach Dead

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)—Dink Templeton, world-renowned track and field authority and former coach at Stanford, died today.

The 65-year-old former athlete had been in hospital three days with a respiratory ailment.

Templeton's death followed by only four days that of his greatest coaching rival, Dean Cromwell of the University of Southern California.

Britain Orders
U.S. Nazi Deported

LONDON (Reuters)—The British government tonight issued an order for the deportation of American Nazi leader George Lincoln Rockwell, who slipped into Britain last week.

The order was issued as Scotland Yard detectives fanned out in a search for the self-styled "führer" whose presence here has raised protests from parliamentary members and anti-Fascist groups.

Rockwell, 42, is believed to be staying with a neo-Nazi sympathizer somewhere in London.

During the weekend Rockwell visited a Fascist-style camp set up by the tiny British National Socialist Movement in rural Gloucestershire where he lectured on anti-Semitic and anti-Negro ideology and whipped up considerable enthusiasm among sympathetic Britons.

Sunday a hooded man dashed past reporters at the camp into a waiting car and it was thought he might be Rockwell. Jack-booted camp guards, armed with cudgels, refused to say who it was.

Premiers Talk
Finance Issues

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Canadian premiers Monday debated the whole field of provincial bond issues and came up with some ground rules for better financing.

One new move will be a secret pipeline to tip each other off on upcoming borrowing plans.

Aim would be to avoid clashes in timing, so that each province could obtain the best available market for securities.

"If it would be done through the syndicates which usually market the bonds," said Quebec Premier Jean Lesage, chairman of the conference of premiers which today started its second series of sessions at the Legislative Buildings here.

Mr. Lesage said provincial borrowing occupied an hour of Monday's one and one-half hour meeting, and went far beyond agenda plans.

The premiers thrashed out various ways of raising money and ended with some ideas on the pitfalls and precautions experienced by B.C., Manitoba and Saskatchewan in parity bond and savings certificate plans.

The conclusions, according to Mr. Lesage were:

1. Wide distribution of such securities is necessary to avoid a sudden rush to cash them in if interest rates go up;
2. Limits on the amount held by individuals and corporations are a good idea, also to avoid heavy cashing in;
3. An exchange of information on upcoming issues would help all provinces planning and marketing issues.

"I believe all of us came out of the discussion with a better knowledge of what can be done and how to improve existing systems," said Mr. Lesage.

He said B.C. delegates Premier Bennett and Attorney-

MEMORIAL PROMISED BY PROVINCES

All provinces today agreed to contribute 15 cents per person to help build a $5,000,000 memorial centre marking Canada's confederation at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island.

The project will start this winter and be completed in 1964, the 100th anniversary of the historic meeting in Charlottetown of the Fathers of Confederation.

It is part of Canada's centennial celebrations, which will continue until 1967.

Agreement to share the cost came at this morning's session here of the provincial conference of premiers.

The federal government has already agreed to pay half the entire cost of the project, which includes a theatre, a museum, an art gallery, library and memorial hall.

COLWOOD

Aged Man
Loses Life
In Fire

By LES MILLIN

An elderly man died early today in a fire that gutted his cabin at a Colwood motel.

Dead is John Mathews, 80.

Twenty firemen of the Colwood volunteer department, called at 4 a.m., fought the blaze for an hour.

Before they could subdue it, heat had charred the interior of the cabin, blown the glass out of the windows and demolished the furniture in the small room.

Paint on the outside walls was blistered off, and only the shell of the building still stands.

No official explanation of the fire was available, but firemen said the cabin's stove was turned off and could not have started the blaze.

Mr. Mathews was known to smoke a pipe.

A neighbor in an adjoining cabin gave the alarm.

His body was found on the floor by firemen who broke the door down to release smoke after intense heat inside the frame building blew glass from the windows.

A son, Charles, lived with Mr. Mathews but was away from the cabin Monday night, staying with a sister who lives in a trailer park nearby.

Although crippled—the victim was wounded in the First World War—he was able to get about quite well, relatives said.

Mr. Mathews had taken off

Propane Blast
Threat Renewed

MAPLE, Ont. (CP)—Engineers were risking their lives today attempting to prevent a new blast on an explosion-wrecked $200,000 propane gas plant.

They were spraying water on a burning truck—an experiment to see whether a similar technique can be used on a 30,000-gallon tank which is still blazing and threatening the neighborhood with another explosion.

The dangerous experiment is being carried on in the shadow of the huge tank at the Superior Propane Company, more than 48 hours after a series of blasts occurred.

One man was killed when the storage tanks went up. Three other men were injured.

It was feared that unless escaping gas can be controlled, the 30,000-gallon tank will explode with the most severe blast so far.

Decision Ends
38-Day Hearing

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today blamed failure to bring 70 Doukhobors to trial on the fact that 48 witnesses for the Crown either changed their stories or refused to testify.

He said his lawyers have been asked to study the case before taking any further action—either new charges or some form of appeal.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—A magistrate today refused to commit 70 elders of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect on conspiracy charges.

Magistrate William Evans said there was not enough evidence for him to order higher court trial on the charges of conspiring to intimidate the governments of Canada and British Columbia with acts of violence.

His ruling ended a 38-day preliminary hearing into the charges which came after RCMP officers arrested the members of the Freedomite's fraternal council in a series of surprise raids at several shacks in the B.C. Kootenays.

Magistrate Evans said in his judgment witnesses and scores of documents produced by the Crown contained little to indicate that the accused had formed a conspiracy.

All but six of the men charged were to be set free later today. The six are in custody on other charges.

LEADERS CHARGED

Stefan Sorokin, spiritual leader of the Freedomites, and other sect leaders, both in Uruguay, were also charged with the conspiracy when the 70 were rounded up March 25.

Police said at the time Stefan and his aide would be arrested on the charges if they returned to Canada.

During the preliminary hearing Freedomite women in the Kootenays burned more than 200 of their homes and staged several nude demonstrations in protest against arrest of the leaders.

Police believed most of the incidents were in protest against the hearing.

At the opening of the hearing Crown prosecutor T. G. Bowen-Colthurst said it was the first time in Canadian history that the charge of intimidating Parliament has been invoked.

The charge carries a maximum penalty of 14 years imprisonment.

HEARING COST $100,000

Court officials estimated the hearing cost $100,000.

The March 25 arrests were one of a series of RCMP widespread bombings and arrests.

44 Charged
In Goofball
Crackdown

VANCOUVER (CP)—RCMP and city police drug squads today arrested 22 persons and held warrants for 22 more on charges of trafficking in narcotics and goofballs.

The arrests resulted from several months of undercover work by RCMP Const. G. C. Hunt, police said.

Most of the suspects were arrested in the city's east end in a co-ordinated series of raids.

Staff Sgt. J. H. Nelson, chief of the RCMP drug squad in Vancouver, said 25 persons were charged with trafficking in narcotics and 17 others with trafficking in goofballs, a slang term used to describe sedatives or stimulants taken as a substitute for narcotics.

Police said the roundup marks the first major crackdown on goofball trafficking in Canada. Sale of goofballs was recently brought under control of the federal Food and Drug Act.

REASON FOR STAR'S DEATH STILL A MYSTERY

Marilyn's Last Phone Call Probed

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A mysterious phone call in the night shortly before Marilyn Monroe was found dead added still further conjecture today to the tragedy that befell the blonde movie queen.

There also remained the question of whether she died intentionally or accidentally.

"I don't remember what time the call came in," said the actress' housekeeper, Mrs. Eunice Murray Monday. "And I don't know who it was from."

"But knowing Marilyn as I do, I think that if this call waked her up, she might have taken some more sleeping pills."

Coroner Theodore J. Curphey said the death Saturday of the actress was caused by a massive overdose of barbiturates.

Mrs. Murray added that the unidentified call might account for the phone's being found clutched in the hand of the sometimes bright and gay, sometimes depressed star.

Meanwhile, arrangements were being completed for quiet funeral services and burial Wednesday. Friends were hoping the simple rites would not attract throngs of the curious.

Details were not set, but a funeral home spokesman said only 15 persons were invited to the service for the 36-year-old Miss Monroe.

"There will be just persons close to Marilyn, no movie people," said a spokesman.

The actress will be placed in a mausoleum crypt near the grave of a woman believed to have befriended her early in life.

The headstone identifies Grace Goddard, who died in 1953 and whose burial arrangements were made by Marilyn herself.

The woman is believed to be the former Grace McKee, who took Marilyn in as a child when

NEW YORK (UPI)—Marilyn Monroe attempted suicide several times in her life, friends disclosed today.

Producer Ben Hecht said Marilyn told him in California in 1954 that she tried to take her life twice before she was 19. Other friends here said she had dangerous bouts with sleeping pills in more recent years.

"When she told me of the suicide attempts in 1954, she was leaving her unhappy early life behind."

"She had 10 wonderful years. Then Hollywood failed her."
